

Phillips at Liberty On Bail of $25,000 In War Fraud Case

At Preliminary Hearing, Examination Is Waived and Bail Is Immediately Furnished.

WARRANT WAS ISSUED WITHOUT INDICTMENT

Complaint Against State G. O. P. Leader Sworn Out by Assistant Attorney-General.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 5.—John Lewis Phillips, republican state chairman for Georgia, for whose arrest a warrant was issued late Saturday on complaint of the department of justice, alleging conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with a war contract for the disposal of surplus lumber, surrendered on his arrival here today from Philadelphia. He was immediately arraigned before a United States commissioner, waived examination and was released on $25,000 bail for action of the grand jury.

The warrant for Mr. Phillips' arrest was issued while the special grand jury was still investigating the lumber disposal contract made by the war department with the firm of Phillips & Stephens, acting as agents for the lumber interests. No indictment has been returned by the grand jury and it was understood that witnesses still were being heard.

Much mystery surrounded the obtaining of the warrant. Until a copy of the complaint was made public at the department of justice late today following the formal arrest of Mr. Phillips, spokesmen of the department denied a warrant had been sought.

Rushed to Washington.

Mr. Phillips said he had hastened to Washington as soon as he had been informed of the issuance of the warrant.

At the moment Mr. Phillips was being arraigned C. William Hare, of Philadelphia, who as director of sales for the war department signed the contract with Phillips & Stephens, was at the department of justice to tell what he knew of the lumber disposal case. Mr. Hare said he did not expect to appear before the grand jury.

Later the department of justice announced Mr. Hare's visit and said he would co-operate with the department in the prosecution of the lumber case.

The first disclosure of the government's hand in this particular one of the so-called war fraud cases came during the arraignment of Mr. Phillips. Appearing for the department of justice were Assistant Attorney-General John W. Crim, in charge of all criminal matters for the department; Special Assistant Attorney-General H. W. Anderson, of Virginia, and Marcus Borchert, special assistant to the attorney-general. Mr. Crim, it was learned, decided to swear out the warrant notwithstanding the fact that no indictment had yet been returned, on evidence and information in his possession following grand jury sessions Thursday and Friday.

Incidentally it became known today that Mr. Phillips was seen in the corridor outside the grand jury room Thursday.

Mr. Phillips tonight refused to make a formal statement but declared all his transactions with the government had always "been clean and above board" and were matters of record. He said he was surprised at his arrest before the grand jury had indicted him and attributed it to politics.

"Politics" Penalty.

"It is the penalty one must pay for being in politics," he added.

Later when Mr. Phillips was unofficially informed that he had been seen in the corridor of the courthouse Thursday he said that he could not comment on the inference made because he did not know officially that this was the reason for his arrest. He said he first learned last Wednesday that the grand jury was considering the lumber case, and the next day dropped in the building out of curiosity. He saw some of his friends in the lumber business, he said, barely shook hands with them and was not in the building more than seven minutes. He said he had no idea of interest with such as were on hand as witnesses in any way.

Complaint Details.

The complaint as made public today by the department of justice recited that at a conference between officers of the war department, the war industries board and the war service committee on building materials in January, 1919, to devise methods for the disposal of surplus lumber, representatives of the lumber industry protested against selling the amount of lumber involved, directly to dealers and consumers on the ground that it would be detrimental to the industry, that the conference then arranged, in order to protect the industry, for the sales to be made through existing organizations within the industry and the war department.

WRIGHT MEASURE ON FORD PROPOSAL IS BEFORE HOUSE

Georgian's Bill Is One of Two Which Would Settle Disposal of the Shoals Plant.

WOULD GIVE ENTIRE PROPERTY TO FORD

While Other Measure Would Eliminate Gorgas Plant From Property Turned Over.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 5.—Two bills authorizing Secretary Weeks to execute contracts with Henry Ford and transfer to him the government's $100,000,000 power and nitrate projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., were introduced today in the house by members of the military committee. One presented by Acting Chairman McKensie, of Illinois, provided for the acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer for the property on condition that Gorgas steam plant be excluded. The other, submitted by Representative Wright, democrat, Georgia, called for unconditional compliance with the terms of the Ford proposal.

House republican leaders announced that action on the measures would be deferred at least until delivery of reports by their authors explaining them in detail and that time would be allowed the house to analyze each of the documents. After that had been accomplished, it was said, a decision would be made as to when actual consideration of the proposed legislation would begin.

Plan Amendments.

It also developed today that the vote of 12 to 9 by which the committee favorably reported the McKensie bill did not reflect the sentiment or attitude of the committee towards all provisions of the measure. Many of its important sections, it was pointed out, would be subject to amendments on the floor when the fight was opened there.

Conflicting opinions still exist on other than the Gorgas property. Some members still are opposed to the proposed 100 year lease of the water power projects to the proposed sale of the nitrate plants, to the provision requiring the government to finance construction of dam number 3. They contend that Mr. Ford should pay for the dam number 3 and that the nitrate plants should be leased rather than sold outright in order that they may be kept in a stand-by condition for nitrate production in wartime.

Struggle Predicted.

A struggle between each of these questions was predicted before a final vote on the acceptance or rejection of either bill was reached. Both factions appeared confident they would win.

Majority Leader Mondell called attention today to the difficulties experienced by the committee during the more than three months it worked on the various proposals. The fact that it finally reported without anything like an agreement, indicated that the task before the house would be by no means a simple one to perform, he said.

Some house members pointed out that if the $7,500,000 appropriation for continuing work on the Wilson dam voted by the senate as an amendment to the army bill, was adopted by the house it would still further influence sentiment favoring a postponement of action on the bills at this session of congress.

Southern members, interested in bringing the subject before the house for quick decision, announced they would seek a special rule if any considerable delay developed in bringing the bills before the house. Congress would not adjourn if it was in their power to prevent, they said, without passing some legislation for Muscle Shoals development.

Sleuths Confiscate Variety of Liquors On Shriners' Special

Milwaukee, Wis., June 5.—Liquors estimated to be worth $10,000 and made up of whiskey, gin, vermouth, and rare wines, which were stored in a baggage car ordered attached to a Chicago Northwestern special train to take 1,000 Shriners to California on a convention trip, were destroyed by federal prohibition agents, it was learned today.

The agents used hand axes to break the containers and the car was destroyed of everything banned by the eighteenth amendment. The raid was made Sunday night.

'HIGH' FINANCING BY WILLINGHAM, CHARGED BY NIX

Trial of Macon Financier, Under Indictment for Larceny After Trust, Opens in Bibb.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY MADE BY DEFENDANT

Defense Tries to Show Financial Statement Was Received by Nix and Not Entered.

Macon, Ga., June 5.—(Special).—A story of alleged "high" financing by Richard F. Willingham, who headed several large enterprises that failed in 1920 and is now on trial under an indictment charging larceny after trust, and an emphatic denial by J. W. Nix, of Atlanta, that the defendant had submitted to him, as secretary-treasurer of the Shippers Compress company, a financial statement of the Willingham Warehouse company shortly before the latter company's failure, were given to the jury late today.

Nix's denial came in reply to a question by Walter A. Harris, chief counsel of the defense. The defense was seeking to show that officials of the Shippers Compress company had full knowledge of Willingham's financial statements. Nix declared, while under examination by Solicitor-General Charles H. Garrett, that he had refused as treasurer of the Shippers Compress company to countersign checks for $25,000 and $40,000 for Willingham, when the latter called him to his office and pleaded for "co-operation."

First Denial.

In his opening remarks to the jury, Mr. Harris undertook to remove any prejudice that may have existed, declaring that "today is the first chance the defense has had an opportunity to enter a denial of the crime for which they have indicted Mr. Willingham." He referred to the indictments returned and to the press.

Georgia Invited To Participate In Exposition

State Asked to Name Representative at Brazil Centennial Celebration.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, June 5.—(By Constitution Leased Wire).—The state of Georgia, through Governor Hardwick, will be urged to appoint a special representative of the state to take part in the international centennial exposition held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, during September, 1922, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the independence of that country, it was announced today.

The commissioners for the United States in making the announcement stated that invitations to representatives of the various states have been issued through their respective governors, and that a complete response was expected. The request to commission prominent citizens has also been extended to mayors of large cities and to chambers of commerce. Visitors to the Brazilian city holding such commissions will be recognized by the government of Brazil as well as by United States representatives, and will be able to obtain many additional courtesies, it was stated.

American participation in the South American exposition has already been reported for by a congressional appropriation of several hundred thousand dollars.

To Visit Atlanta.

In connection with the exposition work, a tour of the United States has been arranged by United States Commissioner Frank A. Harrison and Senator Sebastian Sampaio, commercial attaché of Brazil for the United States, Mexico, Cuba and Canada.

RETAIL COAL COST TO ADVANCE SOON, HOOVER IS TOLD

But Secretary Says Increase Demanded Is Not Justified by Cost at Mines.

COAL DEALERS PLEDGE TO KEEP PRICE DOWN

But Offer Only "Moral Support" on General Idea, While Announcing Coming Rise.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL, United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 5.—Retail coal dealers are willing to make a "moral agreement" with Secretary Hoover to prevent skyrocketing of prices to the consumer during the coal strike emergency but they have told him that retail prices are due for a rise within the next few days.

Powerless to obtain an agreement against this price rise because of the non-polling prerogatives of his department, Hoover could only tell the fifty retailers who conferred with him late Monday that he "can't stand for the retailers' wanting to increase prices, especially since the action taken in Washington by operators and wholesalers has prevented an increase of spot mine runs of coal."

Roderick Stephens, of New York, chairman of the board of directors and of the government relations committee of the National Retail Coal Merchants' association, acting as spokesman for the retailers told Hoover that retail prices to date have remained stationary in almost all localities but must advance in the immediate future $1.75 more or less.

Hoover Denies Justification.

"This is the effect so far as New York, Chicago and other points are concerned of the $3.50 maximum fair price that has been agreed upon for spot mine run of coal," Stephens said.

Hoover told the retailers that the increase was not justified, that already in some instances bituminous coal was selling to the consumer for $9.00 a ton, or at least $1.50 over what he conceived to be a reasonable price.

"You haven't prevented the increase by your action here. You have simply limited it," Stephens declared. "However, we are glad to say we are in accord with the movement originated here to prevent unduly high prices, and we are willing to co-operate with you, but would like representation on the central committee of operators and on the district committees or in any machinery you may set up."

Wants Fair Deal.

"I have appointed no committees and don't intend to. My only part in this problem is the securing of a fair deal. It is only a matter between myself and the individual dealer. The present demand of coal is not heavy. There is no tendency for prices to increase. Maybe the action taken here

CAPITOL AVENUE SITE VOTED DOWN

Members of Bond Commission Indicate Another Girls' High School Location May Be Offered.

In session at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, the bond commission voted its disapproval of the board of education's recommendation that the Capitol avenue-Vanira street tract of 17 acres be purchased as the site for the Girls' High school.

This leaves the question of the location for a Girls' High school open again. Other sites which have been suggested are a large tract known as the Jackson property at the south end of Grant park, a tract at Washington street and Woodward avenue, and the stockade property.

Members of the commission indicated Monday that a new site not hitherto mentioned may be considered.

Recommendations Approved.

The commission approved the board's recommendation for the following school purchases and city council adopted them at its session Monday afternoon:

- A lot adjoining English Avenue school, on which will be erected an annex, $21,800.
- A lot fronting on Capitol Avenue and Little street as the site for a new Fraser Street school, $38,500.
- Lots adjoining the Highland school, on which will be erected an extension, $5,800.
- A lot near Windsor street for the

Warns Diplomats Against Entering Domestic Affairs

Senator Watson Resents Speeches of Foreign Ambassadors on Pending Bills.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER, United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 5.—A warning, courteous but pointed, has been given foreign ambassadors and other diplomatic officials now in the United States against efforts to influence pending legislation in congress.

During debate on the tariff Monday, Senator Watson, of Indiana, an administration spokesman in the upper branch of congress and recently the party "keynote" for the coming campaign, declared:

"I deny the right of the representative of any foreign government accredited to represent his people here, to come within the confines of the United States and instruct us as to what course we shall pursue with reference to the policies of our government."

Object of Remarks.

His remarks were directed at the speeches recently delivered on different occasions by diplomatic representatives of France, Italy and Great Britain, particularly in reference to tariff legislation and a merchant marine.

Referring to statements of French and British consuls before a luncheon of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, in which appeal was made by the foreigners against a restrictive tariff, Watson declared:

"These are purely pro-British, and pro-French declarations. Free trade goes along with internationalism. It goes hand in hand with the league of nations and is a part of all the efforts to tear down American nationality and involve us in the broils and quarrels, indeed in the industrial disturbances of the old world. It is all of one cloth and all of one piece."

Tribute to Geddes.

Speaking of recent utterances of the Italian and British ambassadors on the subject of the tariff, an American merchant marine, our immigration laws and prohibition, Watson said:

"Suppose Colonel Harvey should get up in London and tell them they had to pass a tariff bill or tell them they had to do something or we would not do business with them. We would not last long over there, would we? They would send him home, and they ought to do it. It is not his business to go over there and dictate the policy of European government. It is not theirs to come here and dictate ours."

Watson paid tribute to Geddes as "a very great man, a very capable representative of a mighty people, and yet," he added, "I think he is going entirely outside the bounds of propriety in attempting to dictate the policy of this mighty nation of ours."

"These gentlemen who come here to represent foreign nations," Watson pointed out, "are entitled to their opinions, and within certain limits should have the privilege of expressing them; but I, for one, wish to insist that these gentlemen not under-

Holder Promises To Help Develop Forest Regions

Declares Highway Commission Will Give Its Heartiest Co-operation.

John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission, who was one of the official party of government and state officials to accompany The Constitution's expedition into the federal purchase areas of northeast Georgia last week, which officially dedicated 150,000 acres of forests in the Cherokee and Nantahala reservations into a national recreation and camping reserve, declared Monday that he intends co-operating to the limit with counties in which the reserve extends in the erection of a system of highways which will make travel into that section possible by automobile.

Mr. Holder was loud in his praise of the scenic grandeur and incomparable splendor of the mountains in that section and predicts that when Georgia realizes what tremendous possibilities exist in popularizing and advertising them to the outside world, it will mean more to the state than anything else in the way of development of natural resources.

Will Do Our Best.

"I wish it was possible for the state highway department to build a system of roads through northeast Georgia, second to none," said Mr. Holder. "Unfortunately the department is limited in funds with which to make this possible. We are doing our utmost in roadbuilding and maintenance all over the state with the limited funds at our command and of course we cannot discriminate by expending more for one section than another."

"The trip through Lumpkin, White, Town, Union, Forsyth, Hall, Habersham, Milton and Rabun counties revealed to me a sentiment of the citizens

UNIONS AMENABLE TO SHERMAN LAW, IS COURT DECISION

Supreme Court Renders Verdict in Famous Coronado Coal Case, Involving Strikes.

UNIONS HELD SUABLE TO INSURE JUSTICE

Decision Reverses Damage Verdict Against United Mine Workers as Not Responsible.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 5.—Deciding the celebrated Coronado Coal case the supreme court today held that labor organizations, although unincorporated are amenable to the Sherman anti-trust act, and that under it such organizations may be prosecuted for restraint of interstate commerce. The court also held that labor unions are suable. Chief Justice Taft, in announcing the decision, did not indicate any dissent.

The case which presented the questions passed on by the court was an appeal by the United Mine Workers of America, district No. 21, of that organization and its officers, 27 individuals, some of the latter not members of any union, from a decision by the United States district court of Arkansas, approved by the circuit court of appeals, holding them guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust act during the coal mine strikes in Arkansas in 1914, and imposing damages of $200,000 which were trebled under the anti-trust law.

The effect of the decision today will be to set aside the damages, because of the finding that the acts which caused the destruction of property were not incited for the purpose of restraining interstate commerce.

Five Questions.

During the strike, lawlessness prevailed and property damage was done the Coronado and other mines controlled by the Bach-Denman Coal company. The United Mine Workers of America contested the jurisdiction of the federal courts on the ground that being an unincorporated association of mine workers, it was not subject to prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Five questions were presented by the controversy, Chief Justice Taft said. First, whether there had been a correct selection of the parties to be sued; second, whether the parties not being incorporated were subject to suit; third, whether the United Mine Workers of America had been engaged in a conspiracy or in the destruction of property for which that organization and its officer could be held liable; fourth, whether there was evidence to show that the conspiracy alleged did restrain or monopolize interstate commerce, and fifth, whether the trial court, in charging the jury, had coerced them into returning the verdict. There had been no misjoinder of the parties under the laws of Arkansas, where the case was tried, the supreme court held.

In view of federal legislation, the court announced "that such organiza-

COUNCIL VOTES FOR AMENDMENTS OF CITY CHARTER

Ordinance Permitting Parallel Parking of Autos Downtown Is Passed at Meeting.

VOTE FOR FRONT FOOT TAX BASIS BY 1925

June Finance Sheet Was Adopted at Busy Session of City Council Held on Monday Afternoon.

Passage of a resolution voting its unanimous backing before the legislature of the proposed charter amendments exactly as approved by the people in the election of May 30 of a measure to inaugurate and apply by 1925 the front-foot basis on realty assessment throughout Atlanta; of an ordinance permitting parallel parking of vehicles on the downtown streets, and the adoption of the June finance sheet, were among important acts which marked a busy session of city council Monday afternoon.

The resolution on the charter amendments was adopted by an aye and nay vote, every member voting aye on the roll call. It was introduced by Councilman J. R. Nutting, one of the leaders in behalf of the old charter with the amendments.

City Attorney James L. Mayson was instructed to draft a bill providing for these amendments, which will be presented to the legislature this summer. The measure also included the appointment of a special committee to work for their passage. On this committee the mayor pro tem named Councilman Nutting, Councilman Claude Ashley and Alderman W. C. Davis.

$100,000,000 Increase.

Application of the front foot rule on real estate assessment will increase realty assessments in Atlanta approximately $100,000,000, in the event the present rate of assessment, which is 70 per cent of the real estimated value of the property, is not reduced.

Installation of the system was recommended by the tax committee acting after a conference with the city tax assessors. The three assessors agreed that the plan would be a more uniformly exact and scientific method of assessment, but Assessor

Driver Is Killed When Auto Hits Tree on Sidewalk

Several White Women and Children Are Slightly Injured.

33 Cases Are Made. Closely following the recent succession of automobile accidents and the subsequent order of Chief J. L. Beavers to his men with references to a more rigid enforcement of the traffic laws, a total of 33 cases were docketed Monday against alleged offenders.

Of the 33 cases 16 were made for violation of traffic rules. Speeders numbered 13. Reckless driving was charged to three persons while another was arrested for operating an automobile while in an intoxicated condition.

Reubin Pice, negro, residing in the rear of 69 Rawson street, was instantly killed; Charlie Merrett, his companion, of 117 Fraser street suffered serious injuries, and several white women and children who were walking along the sidewalk were slightly injured, when the automobile driven by Pice left the street on Washington street near Fair shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night and was demolished against a tree.

Merrett, who was arrested by Call Officers J. H. Mashburn, Jr., and W. F. Bullard, told the officers that Pice lost control of the wheel as the automobile sped around a curve near the scene of the smashup. Merrett stated the machine was traveling at a high rate of speed when it rounded the curve, careening into the sidewalk, striking several women and children who were passing and colliding with a tree. Police were unable to learn the names of the pedestrians. Their injuries are believed to have been of a minor nature.

Pice's neck was broken and his

Resolutions Call for Speeding Up Service to "15-Second Standard." Mayor Approves Paper.

MAYSON WILL APPEAR BEFORE RAIL BOARD

Without a member dissenting, city council adopted a resolution Monday afternoon directing City Attorney James L. Mayson to appear before the state railroad commission Tuesday morning and request a reduction of 3:15 per cent in the telephone rates charged by the Southern Bell Telephone company, and demand that the service be improved and speeded up to the "fifteen second standard."

According to the measure, which was introduced by the telephone and electric light committee, the fifteen second standard was in effect in Atlanta previous to the purchase of the Atlanta Telephone company by the Southern Bell company in 1920.

The paper was carried down to Mayor Key's office by City Electrician R. C. Turner, who with Councilman Fred C. Woodall, opened fire against the telephone company Saturday, and the mayor affixed his signature of approval.

Woodall's Measure.

Mr. Woodall, in accordance with his announcement Saturday, offered a resolution demanding lower rates and better service. The measure of the telephone and electric light committee was introduced as a substitute.

He asked: "That a petition be filed with the railroad commission in the name of the city of Atlanta protesting against the service now being rendered the citizens of this city by the telephone company and asking that some proper rules be promulgated by which this service could be improved."

"That either in connection with the filing of the petition, or separately, the railroad commission be requested by this city to require the telephone company to reduce the prices charged for the domestic and business phones, in view of the fact that the prices of material and labor have very much decreased and the facts upon which the present rates were fixed, no longer exist."

"That the city attorney be instructed to prepare and file the petition immediately with the railroad commission, and appear at such hearing as the commission may have in support of the petition on behalf of the city."

"That the commission be requested to require the Southern Bell Telephone company to furnish what is generally known as the 'fifteen second' service."

Turner Will Appear.

City Electrician Turner will go before the railroad commission Tuesday morning to assist the city attorney.

They will be armed, among other arguments for rate revision, with a petition signed by 1,000 grocers and other business men of Atlanta, asking that body to order a rate reduction.

The hearing is scheduled to commence Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Turner scored the local telephone service in conversation Saturday with newspaper men, as the "worst in the whole country." Councilman Woodall claimed the rates as "excessive and exorbitant," and the service as "intolerable."

RAIL BOARD CONTINUES PHONE RATE HEARING.

The state railroad commission Tuesday will take up the third phase of its hearing to determine whether or not telephone exchange rates charged by the Southern Bell Telephone company in Georgia shall be reduced. The first two phases of the case were heard several weeks ago when the company representatives headed by

Ford Is Willing To Enter Race For Presidency

Detroit, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Henry Ford has intimated privately that he would run for president "if the people of the country desire him to do so," but "he would not want to spend any money to bring about his nomination or election," according to William T. Kronberg, editor of a Dearborn newspaper and one of the leaders in the Dearborn "Henry Ford for President" club.

Although he has made no public statement, Mr. Ford has intimated to members of the club that he would be in a receptive mood should the demand for his candidacy come from the people of the country, Mr. Kronberg told the Associated Press.

Members of the club, who last week planned to see Mr. Ford and officially ask him to run for president, has decided to wait until after the club's organization meeting at Dearborn tomorrow night, Mr. Kronberg said today. It is possible, Mr. Kronberg said, that a committee will be delegated tomorrow night to wait upon Mr. Ford some time during the week and make the official request.

1920 GOVERNMENT COST IN GEORGIA TRYING TO CREATE MORE JOBS

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, June 5.—(By Constitution Bureau.)—Total costs of government for the state of Georgia for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1920, was $12,582,102, representing a per capita cost of $4.32, according to figures released today by the department of commerce.

In 1917 the per capita cost was $2.69, and in 1914, $2.52, the totals for these years being $7,579,017 and $6,330,846, respectively. The per capita costs for 1920 consisted of expenses of general departments, $3.33; payments for interest, $0.08; and for outlays $0.91.

The total revenue receipts in 1920 were $12,521,040, or $4.41 per capita. For the fiscal year the per capita expenses of revenue receipts over governmental costs was therefore, $0.08.

Property and special taxes constitute the greater part of the revenue in a majority of states. In Georgia they represented 60.3 per cent in 1920, 68.8 per cent for 1917 and 63.0 per cent for 1914. The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 35.7 per cent from 1914 to 1917, and 13.3 per cent from 1917 to 1920. The per capita property and special taxes for the three specified years were $2.22, $1.88 and $1.47, respectively.

Earnings of general departments, or compensation for services rendered by state officials, represented 11.6 per cent of the total revenue for 1920, 9.2 per cent for 1917 and 10.0 per cent for 1914.

Business and non-business licenses, which in previous years included receipts from liquor licenses, constituted 24.2 per cent of the total revenue for 1920, 9.5 per cent for 1917 and 12.8 per cent for 1914. Receipts from business licenses consist chiefly of taxes exacted from insurance and other incorporated companies, while those from non-business licenses comprise taxes on motor vehicles and amounts paid for hunting and fishing privileges.

The net indebtedness (funded and floating debt less sinking fund assets of Georgia is decreasing, being $138 per capita for 1920, $214 for 1917, and $239 for 1914.

In nearly all states the property subject to the general property tax varies in the reported basis of assessment, though in most instances the law requires that property be assessed at full market value. For this reason the best measure of cost to the property owner is the rate of taxation. The per capita levy for Georgia for 1920 was $2.31.

COLLINS PROTESTS PETITGOE ATTACK

Dublin, June 5.—The British attack and occupation of Pettigoe and the surrounding salient which extends a mile beyond the Ulster border into the state territory, has brought a protest and a demand for an inquiry from Michael Collins, head of the free state provisional government.

Collins views the British occupation of the salient as a serious matter, it was stated officially. The announcement followed publication of the British communiqué in which it was explained that the British were forced to occupy the salient around Pettigoe, extending about a mile beyond the frontier, in order to secure the high ground on which the railway line enters the town.

Collins and Eamon de Valera, extreme republican leader, issued an appeal for support in the electoral contests which are threatening to create bitterness. They express the hope that the official panel of candidates will be agreed upon in the conditional understanding which apportioned the seats between the two Irish factions. The nomination of candidates to the panel and contests are threatened in many constituencies.

COUNTY FUNERAL IS HELD FOR AGED WOMAN AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The first official funeral for a person maintained by county charity funds was held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Aline Stummer, 80, who, since her affliction with paralysis two years ago, has been cared for by Clarke county funds at a local hospital.

Among those attending the funeral were Professor J. L. Sibley and his class in sociology from the University of Georgia; Dr. J. D. Applewhite, county health officer; Justice of the Peace Milton Thomas; E. I. Smith, treasurer; Miss Crawford, county nurse; and Sheriff Walter E. Jackson, Mr. E. H. Jennings, of the Prince Avenue Baptist church, assisted by Rev. George E. Stone, conducted the funeral.

The pallbearers were Hugh White, chairman of the board of county commissioners; J. M. Hodgson, another member of the board of county commissioners; J. H. Dorsey, county tax collector; C. N. Wheatley, coroner; H. K. Nicholson, engineer; and R. L. Estes, warden.

Mrs. Harriet D. Woods, of Illinois, has been nominated by President Harding to be superintendent of the Congressional Library building and grounds.

Washington, June 5.—A democratic fight against creation of additional federal offices forced house leaders today to abandon their attempt to pass the senate bill providing for another assistant secretary of labor. Because of the opposition, the motion to take it up for a vote was withdrawn. It may be put through later under a special rule.

UNIONS AMENABLE TO SHERMAN LAW

tions are suable in the federal courts for their acts and that unions are subject to be expended in conducting strikes are subject to execution in suits for torts committed by such unions in strikes. On the ground that there was nothing in the evidence to show that the international union or international board of the United Mine Workers has authorized the strike, or took any part in preparation for it or in its maintenance or had ratified it by paying any of the expenses, the court concluded that the international union and its officers should not have been held by the trial court as subject to joint liability with the district and local organizations and officers for participation in the strike, or for the destruction of property incident to the strike.

The authority placed by members of district No. 21 in their officers to order a strike, it was held, made the district organization responsible for any unlawful injuries inflicted during the strike and made the funds accumulated for strike purposes by the full district liable for any judgment which is recovered.

It was necessary, however, in order to hold district No. 21 liable in this case under the anti-trust act, to establish that the conspiracy to attack the Baithe-Bennett mines and stop non-union employment there was within intent to restrain interstate commerce, to monopolize it and subject it to the control of the union. Chief Justice Taft stated, adding that while coal mining is not interstate commerce, and obstruction of coal mining is not a direct obstruction to interstate commerce in coal, Congress has the power to subject such acts to national supervision and restraint. It also has the power, the court held, to punish conspiracies in which such practices are part of the plan to hinder, restrain or monopolize interstate commerce.

Triple Damages Possible.

While unincorporated labor organizations could be sued under the Sherman anti-trust law for triple damages for losses to property caused by them, there was nothing in the evidence of the present case, it was declared, to show that the acts complained of were aimed by the labor unions to restrain interstate trade. Questions relating to the charge to the jury were dismissed without examination by the court. The court held that the decision holding that restraint of interstate commerce had not been the object of the strike.

Labor leaders in Washington, including officers of the American Federation of Labor, who are expressing concern over the sweeping provisions of the decision, decline to authorize any statement in advance of a careful study of the opinion.

They were particularly interested in that section of the opinion which held that the treasury of labor organizations could be held liable for damages caused by labor.

Discussing the object and demands of the United Mine Workers of America and the government of the organization between the convention and the purpose of determining whether organized labor, although unincorporated, may be sued, Chief Justice Taft reviewed in detail its strike rules and other matters bearing on the question. "No organized corporation has greater unity of action," he declared, "and in none is more power centered in the governing executive bodies."

Necessary for Justice.

At common law, it was pointed out, an unincorporated association of persons was not recognized as having any other character than a partnership to be sued at or to sue in the name of its members whose liabilities had to be enforced against each member.

"But the growth and necessities of these great labor organizations have brought affirmative legal recognition of their existence and usefulness and provisions for their protection which their members have found necessary," the chief justice continued. "The rights of labor unions to maintain strikes, he declared, their protection against embezzlement by the officers and their right to sue in their own name in statutory arbitration and before official labor boards and the adaptability of equitable procedure to modern needs requiring the representation by one person of many have all had their effect."

"Out of the very necessities of existing conditions," he added, "and the utter impossibility of doing justice otherwise, the suitable character of such an organization as this has come to be recognized in some jurisdictions for many suits for and against labor unions are reported in which the question has been raised as to the right to treat them in their closely united action and function as artificial persons capable of suing and being sued."

body horribly mangled in the wreck. His companion suffered cuts on the face and is thought to be internally injured. He is being held at police station on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct. Both negroes are said to have been under the influence of liquor.

Nine-year-old Glenn Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Campbell, lives on the Gordon road, Monday was recovering from injuries suffered Sunday night when he was struck by an automobile about a quarter of a mile from his home.

He was carried to the Grady hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a broken jaw bone, a fractured arm and bad cuts about the head and shoulders.

The Campbell boy was struck and knocked down immediately after he had gotten out of a motor truck that he was returning home from church. A sister, Miss Mae Lou Campbell, an aunt, Mrs. Sallie Campbell and Mrs. Coleman Henderson were in the party returning from church. They stated that the driver of the machine did not stop after striking the boy.

A good description of the car was furnished county police, and they are endeavoring to effect the arrest of the driver.

Human Part Fight.

It was the introduction of a resolution similar to the one adopted by the school teachers' association that resulted in heated arguments at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher association on Monday night, June 4.

The resolution was followed by a fist fight and the arrest of four of the participants for disorderly conduct.

When the resolution thanking Miss Gatins for her services and expressing regret for her illness was introduced, the "parent-Teacher association meeting, amendments were offered by persons said to be representatives of the anti-Catholic element, which resulted in the fight.

The members of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of the legislative committee to accept the resignation of Miss Gatins. The members of the association take a definite stand at any time when a political situation arose which in any way threatened the public school system or endangered its functioning power.

It also was voted to give a banquet at the opening of the school term in September, and at the end of the scholastic year in June. A series of lectures on prominent educators throughout the country will be arranged for future meetings, it was announced.

both of whom will probably visit Atlanta on the tour.

When Brazil sent official notification of the celebration and invited Georgia to attend the exposition, it was aimed by the labor unions to restrain interstate trade. Questions relating to the charge to the jury were dismissed without examination by the court. The court held that the decision holding that restraint of interstate commerce had not been the object of the strike.

At Rio de Janeiro the government has purchased a plot of ground for a favored labor union, the exposition campus, and a building of a handsome design and permanent character is being constructed. After the close of the exposition the building is to be decorated inside and will be the home of the United States embassy and other activities of our government in Brazil. The building and grounds will cost about $300,000. During the exposition the government exhibits will be housed in this building and in a temporary pavilion adjoining.

The state is to acquire business people with the opportunities that await in South America and the importance of visiting Rio this year, where so many of the nation's business leaders are gathered. It is believed that those who go on such a trip will come back with a knowledge of conditions and needs that will be very valuable in future developments of mutual trade.

Rather Delay a Year.

Major R. J. Guinn, a member of the bond commission, said Monday that he would rather see a delay of a year in the building of the girls' school than to make the wrong selection of a site.

Members of the board of education favorable to the Vanira tract and the girls' school, continued their meeting of the commission to argue for its selection, but the commission did not open the question for discussion.

The commission at its meeting Monday also approved agreements between the viaduct committee and the mayor, on one hand, and engineers representing the railroads on the other, in the erection of the Spring street viaduct.

They consisted of agreements concerning property transfers and changes of buildings, and were transmitted to council and adopted by that body.

"Georgia's mountains are without a peer anywhere in the country, and if our citizens only realized the tremendous benefits that would be derived from popularizing our sunshine, air and climatic conditions like North Carolina and other states throughout the Blue Ridge extends, hundreds of thousands of persons from other sections of the country would flock here instead of other resorts whose climate they have awakened to their advantage."

ten days ago has turned the tide, and the emergency may be successfully met. It may last three weeks, six weeks or three months.

But during the strike emergency, the consuming public has to expect a reasonable price without any boosting by speculation. The retailers were not disposed to meet Hoover on the proposition of fixing a basic retail price, leaving regard to freight conditions and rates in varying districts. Faced with this impasse, Hoover adjourned the Stephens of the same degree of voluntary support in the present emergency as he received during the war. But there was nothing to support.

CHARTER AMENDMENT VOTED IN COUNCIL

W. A. Hancock warned that it would increase the tax burden tremendously. He said that it would raise real estate not less than $100,000,000, if the existing 10 per cent rate of assessment is maintained. This would net the city a clear boost of $1,500,000 in ad valorem revenue annually. The council acted on the tax increase, however, that when the front foot basis is applied the rate of assessment should come down to 50 per cent of the existing rate. The city would suffer no decrease from the income received now, it is claimed, and the people of Atlanta would not pay so much taxes to Fulton county and the state.

The Present System.

As the assessors appraise a piece of property now they visit it and place a value on it, building included, if they are one day in the city they are without knowledge of the dimensions of the property.

Under the new plan they will have the measurements of each lot. They will not be confined to an arbitrary rate of assessment but will be governed by the location of the land. They will assess the buildings separately.

The resolution carried instructions to the assessors to begin immediately to map a survey and preparation of maps. Every lot in the city will have to be mapped and the undertaking will be an enormous one.

Councilman Claude Ashley was the member who voted against the plan. He said he had studied it since the tax committee acted favorably on the change and declared that its enforcement would bring about "inequality and injustice to the highest degree." He warned council that the "wrath of the town" would come down on its head within three years.

Parallel Parking.

Parallel parking of vehicles will be ordered on all downtown thoroughfares, except Marietta street, from Peachtree to Cone, all of Cone street, Central avenue, Forsyth street, Mitchell street, if Mayor Key approves the proposed traffic amendment.

No items in the June budget were fought by Councilman Walter A. Sims and were ruled illegal by the city attorney, but council refused to strike them from the sheet.

They were an appropriation of $1,500 voted for the purpose of furnishing a barbecue and other entertainment for members of the Georgia legislature this summer, and a fund of $250 to be used by the city in carrying before the general assembly the movement looking to state acquisition of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, said to be threatened with discontinuance. Both were appropriations advocated by Mayor Key.

Council had previously in the session sustained the ruling of the city in declaring proposed appropriations to pay convention trip expenses of John C. Beavers, Controller R. B. Graham West and the librarian at Carnegie library, to be illegal.

Speed Limit Made.

The council passed a resolution forbidding city employees from driving city-owned automobiles and trucks at a speed exceeding 12 miles an hour within the city limits. Cars of the police and fire department and Grady hospital are excepted.

Adopting a favorable report by the street committee, council authorized a survey by planning commission engineers of Peters street to furnish estimates in a plan to widen, regrade and repave the thoroughfare.

Alderman C. L. Chosewood introduced a proposed charter amendment requesting authority for the city to acquire outside of the city limits, even in another county, if desired, a new stockade site. The paper was referred to the charter revision committee.

Council elected Dr. Fred Morris to succeed J. L. Jackson, resigned, as a member of the board of health from the first ward. The election of a successor to D. J. Baker, of the seventh ward, who died recently, was postponed two weeks.

reports of Willingham's affairs, asserting that "through it all the defense has been compelled to remain quiet."

During the cross-questioning of Nix, Mr. Harris attempted to prove by Nix that a statement had been mailed to him which he had not recorded on his books. Nix entered an emphatic denial, and during the succeeding moments matters waxed warm between the attorney and the witness.

The earlier part of Nix's testimony involved a number of books, ledgers, statements and accounts of the Shippers Compress company in Nix's custody since July 1920, when he was made secretary of the company in addition to his duties as treasurer, under an election on April 28, 1920.

Charges Larceny.

Nix was placed on the stand by the state to bring out the various deals alleged to have been transacted by Willingham without the knowledge or consent of other officers of the company and which involved the credit standing of the Shippers Compress with a number of banks throughout the country from which, Nix testified, Willingham had borrowed money on the notes of the compress company and then withdrew the money, depositing it in other banks to the credit of the Willingham Warehouse company.

Willingham at that time was president of both concerns.

Opened Accounts.

Nix named in his testimony eleven banks in which he said Willingham had opened accounts in the name of the Shippers Compress company without any knowledge on his part. In each one of the banks, he testified, Willingham had deposited a few thousand dollars, which the solicitor-general said in his opening statement to the jury was for the purpose of establishing credit, and within a few days had floated a note in most instances for at least $25,000 and within a few days after the floating of the note would check out with the exception of a few thousand dollars the majority of the original deposit and the money secured from the note.

From these transactions, Nix said, the Shippers Compress company, had derived no benefit, and each instance had paid or assured the liability of the notes.

In outlining the case to the jury, Mr. Harris stated that after all admissions are made for the balance left in the banks to the credit of the Shippers Compress company, a deficit was shown of $162,475, which Willingham is alleged to have fraudulently appropriated for the use of the Willingham Warehouse company, a concern in which Mr. Garrett charged, he is owner of 80 per cent of the capital stock.

Refused to Sign.

"Were you ever asked to sign a check for the Shippers Compress company by anyone?" Mr. Garrett asked Nix.

"Yes," replied Nix, "I was asked by Mr. Sissions to sign two checks on July 12, one for $25,000 and another for $40,000, but I refused to sign them."

"Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Willingham about your refusal to sign the checks?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes," was the reply, "I had an interview with him in his office on Thursday or Friday after that. He said money matters were tight; that he was having a hard time keeping his different companies going and that he was having a hard time keeping him. He said he hoped I would cooperate with him; that he had been $200,000 and $500,000 due within ninety days, but after that he would be all right."

"What did you say to that?" asked Mr. Garrett.

"I told him I would be glad to cooperate with him in any way I could."

This transaction took place, Nix said, about July 15, 1920, and Mr. Willingham resigned the presidency of the compress company July 27, 1920.

Signed by Sissions.

In answer to a question by the solicitor, Nix said the checks, when presented to him, already had been signed by Willingham, but that they had to be countersigned by another official of the company.

"Did you know that the proceeds from these two checks went to the warehouse?" Nix was asked.

"I knew," he answered, "but I did not know until later that they had been countersigned by Mr. Sissions, and charged to the account of the Shippers Compress company."

The major portion of Nix's testimony was in direct evidence conducted by Solicitor General Garrett and dealt largely with figures on the ledger and records of the Shippers Compress company. Mr. Garrett took up each item separately. Occasionally defense attorneys would object to an answer by Nix, and the records would be introduced into court as the highest and best evidence.

Court Releases Valentino and He Pines for Jean

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—Whether the charge of bigamy against Rudolph Valentino, film actor, dismissed today in the township court here will be taken before the Los Angeles grand jury still was under consideration tonight, District Attorney Woolwine said.

The official indicated that he was disposed to accept the ruling of Justice of the Peace J. Walter Hanby, to the effect that there was slight chance of convicting Valentino, as final.

Justice Hanby's decision was that while there was no denial of the charge that Valentino married Miss Winifred Hudnut, in Mexicali, lower California, while he still was legally married to Miss Jean Acker, there was insufficient evidence that he lived with Mrs. Valentino, number two, in California, subsequently. The California code provides that in case of an alleged bigamous marriage outside the state, proof of marital relations within the state following such marriage must be adduced in order to sustain the charge. Evidence in Justice Hanby's court was that Valentino and his second bride returned to California and passed two days in a cottage at Palm Springs, a desert resort in Riverside county, occupying separate rooms.

Mr. Woolwine said he had under consideration the possible prosecution of several other persons who were married in Mexico and had returned to California to live before they had been granted their final decrees of divorce from their first spouses. They said that in these cases the circumstances which caused Justice Hanby to dismiss the Valentino complaint did not exist.

Valentino, through his attorneys said he "would not, under any conditions, assume marital relationship with the present Mrs. Valentino until the time fixed by law shall have expired, upon which he will be married again here in Los Angeles."

He said he invited Mr. Woolwine and Deputy District Attorney Costello, who conducted the case before Justice Hanby to attend the wedding next year. In closing he said: "There is a tear of regret because of the enforced absence of the woman who has been by inspiration and counselor in my art."

AMERICAN VESSEL SEIZED BY BRITISH

London, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—A steamer bound from New York for Fenit, County Kerry, with corn and a mixed cargo, has been held up in Tralee bay by a British sloop, says a dispatch to the Press association from Tralee today.

A large quantity of ammunition in barrels was seized, the dispatch says. A Central News dispatch says the steamer is the Seattle Spirit and she is now berthed at Fenit pier.

The Seattle Spirit is a shipping board vessel built at Seattle in 1919. She sailed from New York, May 18 for Cork, Dublin and Belfast.

OWNERS DENY KNOWLEDGE.

New York, June 5.—Officials of the Moore and McCormick company, which operates the Seattle Spirit, declared today they had no knowledge of arms or ammunition aboard the vessel when she sailed, and asserted the supplies alleged to have been covered by the British must have been smuggled aboard by members of the crew.

The cargo, said Captain C. W. Kreig, marine superintendent of the line, was of corn in bulk, and merchandise in barrels, boxes and bags.

Three months ago, an attempt to smuggle arms into Ireland aboard one of the line's six vessels was frustrated by the master of the craft, Captain Kreig revealed today.

Several thousand rounds of ammunition were found in the coal bunkers, he said, just as the ship was docking at an Irish port.

The captain of the vessel arrested several members of the crew and turned them over to the British authorities for trial, it was said.

The Seattle Spirit is the second American vessel to get into trouble over shipment of arms for Ireland.

Just a year ago this month, the steamship East Side was boarded by she was loading at a pier in Hoboken, and 405 machine guns were seized by the Hoboken police, on the theory they were being illegally shipped to Ireland.

Pastors Deplore All Criticisms Of the Dry Law

At the regular monthly meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' association held Monday morning at the Y. M. C. A., the following resolutions, introduced by the special committee, appointed at the May meeting, and consisting of Dr. Richard Orme Plinn, Dr. Charles O. Jones, Rev. W. J. DeBardeleben, Dr. W. H. Major and James Morton, were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, the public policy of this state, as expressed by its statutes, is firmly against the traffic in liquor; and

"Whereas, our courts are organized for the express purpose of enforcing this law, to the end that the liquor traffic may be utterly wiped out; and

"Whereas, the existing system for habitual offenders is proving wholly inadequate to suppress the traffic, and operates, in fact, as a cheap license to bootleggers; and

"Whereas, the records show that the city criminal court of Atlanta, in a majority of cases, merely imposes fines, although certain ones of these convicted are notoriously engaged in violation of our prohibition law; and

"UP TO CONGRESS."

It is now "up to" congress to determine the future of the Muscle Shoals development proposal submitted to the government by Henry Ford, the house military affairs committee, after many long, wearisome months of procrastination, quibbling over details, hesitation and delay, having finally passed the matter on to the floor of the house, where it should have been placed long ago.

The Ford offer as it was submitted to the house was accompanied by three committee reports: The majority report, favoring the bid of the Detroit manufacturer in every respect, except the inclusion of the Gorgas steam plant; the minority report, recommending its acceptance in every respect and without amendment, and a second minority report recommending its flat rejection.

The fact that the majority report, ostensibly recommending acceptance of the proposal, favors exclusion of the Gorgas steam plant means that each of the committee members who signed either it or the second minority report is opposed to letting the contract to Mr. Ford, since Mr. Ford's final word to the committee was that "if my revised offer for Gorgas is rejected, then I must understand that the acceptance of my offer for Muscle Shoals as a whole and not in part is refused."

In other words, Mr. Ford has plainly stated that he will refuse to undertake the proposed development unless the Gorgas plant is included, because that unit, he said, "is necessary to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals property." Yet the committee members concurring in the majority report pretend to favor putting the Muscle Shoals property in Ford's hands, but impose a restriction that Ford himself says makes that impossible.

It simply means that the only essential difference between their attitude and that of the three or four members who signed the second minority report is that the latter are bold enough and frank enough to come out in the open and declare their opposition to the Ford proposal in toto while the former are not.

The ability of the government to give clear title to the Gorgas plant is a question upon which there may be room for difference of opinion; but the question of title is one for the courts, not the committee, to decide. And as for that, the department of justice has ruled, for the benefit of all concerned, that there is no legal reason why the Gorgas plant cannot be included with the Muscle Shoals property.

That of the department of justice is the highest official legal opinion obtainable short of the courts, and the courts cannot pass upon the question in advance of affirmative action by congress.

It is apparent that public sentiment is overwhelmingly favorable to the Ford offer; and that the majority members of the house military affairs committee are cognizant of that fact, as well as of the additional fact that certain powerful privileged interests are bitterly opposed to letting Ford get a foothold at Muscle Shoals.

Now that the whole matter has finally been submitted by the committee, which never has had authority to do more than make recommendations concerning it, it is to be hoped that congress will definitely nately act upon it one way or the other without further unnecessary delay.

DRUG PEDDLERS.

The vigorous crusade that is being made under federal auspices against the traffic in narcotic drugs, intensified and accentuated by recent startling revelations of the wholesale distribution of "dope" to inmates of the federal prison, is generally gratifying to all who are interested in human welfare and public decency.

Addressing the Atlanta Civitan club the other day, J. E. Dyche, warden of the federal prison, characterized the drug peddlers as being "the worst of the criminal element," and suggested the hangman's noose as the penalty deserved by violators of the Harrison anti-narcotic law.

While this suggestion as to punishment may sound drastic, and probably was not intended by Warden Dyche to be taken seriously in a literal sense, there is no doubt but that the seller of forbidden narcotic drugs is a criminal of the most degraded, vicious and potentially the most dangerous type.

"Dope," said the warden, "injures the brain. It ruins the body and steals the soul. When a man craves and has not the means or the opportunity to buy it, he will lie to you, he will steal from you and he will kill for the drug."

The truth of what Mr. Dyche said is a matter of common knowledge.

It is known as well to those engaged in the drugs traffic as it is to social welfare workers, officers of the law and the public generally.

In the final analysis, then, having that knowledge, the peddler who sells drugs to his poor, miserable, unfortunate victims, is himself primarily guilty of whatever crimes the addicts may commit. If the dope fiend steals, the seller of the drug that inspired the crime primarily is himself the thief; if he kills, the peddler basically is the murderer, and should at least share in the penalty.

It would be impracticable, of course, in the event of the commission of a crime by a drug addict to run down and punish all who are actually participants in the crime by reason of their having supplied the incentive; but an energetic, relentless and effective crusade against the drug traffic, such as that which now seems to be under way, is neither impossible nor impracticable.

A few years of positive and aggressive action by the authorities of the law, including the judges upon whom rests the responsibility of imposing sentences, undoubtedly would bring about a material depreciation of the narcotic drugs traffic and heighten popular respect for the Harrison act.

THE SURE THRIFT WAY.

Thrift-lessons in the lives of many successful men are worthy to be learned by heart and lived up to, for they are the lights along the way for the youth of the country.

But the right thrift lessons are unheeded by many in the illusive get-rich-quick rush—to get something for nothing.

Writing along this line in the Philadelphia Record, S. W. Straus says that this desire to "get there" without patient, steady effort, has resulted in many tragedies which would have been averted had the right road been taken in time.

But that seems too hard a road to travel to those who dream of early riches on fairy-fashioned easy streets.

"The practices of thrift," says Mr. Straus, in his Philadelphia Record article, "may not yield immediate returns, and—"

"To the impatient or ambitious person, the careful saving of money, penny by penny, or dollar by dollar, may seem too slow a progress toward acquiring financial success. But it has been shown by the great book of human experience that the long run these systematic processes of upbuilding are the only ones worth considering. The real successes that have come through any other method of progress are so exceedingly rare as to be unworthy of consideration in the plans of any well-meaning person."

The fear of an old age of poverty and of becoming a burden to one's friends is now and then given by those who take the leap in the dark and end it all.

They did not learn their thrift lessons, and so left age to take its chance, all unprovided for.

And yet they had their opportunity, when the lights were bright along the sure thrift way.

As the average employer sees it, the difficulty is not to get women in business, but to get business in women.

Not all men who yearn to get something for nothing go to jail—some of them go to the poor-house.

They might have interested America by adjourning the conference to the Hail &amp; Haig.

A civilization starts on the downgrade about the time it becomes too nice to say sweet.

Where is greater grace that's given From the cabin and the dome?

Where's the straightest road to heaven?

We shall live for truest living "Right here, at home!"

THE KEEN EDGE.

I find that my razor has to be stropped every morning before use.

Else its edge is not keen for happy service.

And I find that my mind, as well, has to be stropped each day—against itself, but against some other walk—a book, a conversation, a walk, a picture, or some of the myriad creations of Nature that nest all about us.

If you watch the work of some one who has entered upon much experience, you will see smoothness of operation and sureness of action. The keen edge asserts itself over and over again.

Nothing is truer than that the prizes in this world go to the alert.

Elbert Hubbard had the correct slant when he wrote: "The world bestows its prizes, both in money and honors, for but one thing. And that is initiative. What is initiative? I'll tell you. It is doing the right thing without being told. But next to doing the thing without being told is to do it when you are told once."

Initiative seems every faculty in one's make-up.

But to get and hold initiative you must carry light equipment—that is, you must not be encumbered by the weights and successes of others, you must not feel that the world owes you a living and that luck in this world is a respecter of persons. You must center your entire being upon one object—the thing at hand.

And be happy while you are at it—believing in your heart that great things are sure to come your way.

The keen minded lawyer has been schooled in losing cases quite as thoroughly as in winning them.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, June 5.—Broadway's

caveat girl? She has never been navigated, yet she plays a conspicuous role in the life of the city. She is Way's passing peasant. She is ever beautiful, always picturesquely dressed and in most instances has stripped the rosate dream to find it frozen.

"Cigars! Cigars!" There is a fluted cadence to her sing-song cry—

a nightingale among the night-birds.

About her is an air of intangible sorrow. Soggy wine guzzlers find no

echoing response to their flirtations and advances. Still repulsed not with scorn, but with maidenly innocence.

There is Leontine, known to every

Broadway rouser, bouncer and wastcher. All day she works at a telephone switchboard and at midnight

with her wooden tray and silver coin

plate weaves her way among the fire-flies. She is more beautiful by far than the girl who whirls gold and tinsel on the stage.

In a little Harlem flat she cares for a motherless brood of brothers and sisters and her surplus earnings are mailed weekly to her husband in lonely Arizona desert tent. Monied yogi of the flesh have tempted her.

She might easily ride in limousines—

at least for a short while.

Then there was the tragic little

Celeste. In the old days she held forth in the opal radiance of old

Maximilian. The daughter of a French

peasant, she weaved a spell of beauty that made her, the humble cigar

girl, the super-magnet of this gay resort.

Men fought for her. Indeed, one was pistolled. In the end she married a cast-off son of a rich man who society you can't employ the words of profligacy. He beat and deserted

her. She still sells cigars in a less name.

PRESIDENT SIGNS U. S. RESERVE BILL

Washington, June 5.—President Harding today signed the bill creating an additional place on the federal reserve board and authorizing the president to appoint members to that body from among representatives of agriculture, as well as commercial and banking interests.

It was said at the white house last week that the creation of an additional member of the board probably would allow the reappointment to membership of W. P. G. Harding, the present governor of the board.

ATHENS PROGRESSIVES PETITION WHITE WAY

Athens, Ga., June 5.—(Special).—A movement to have a great white way system in Athens will be pushed at a preliminary meeting of council here tonight. It is thought there will be no definite returns from the movement until the regular meeting of council Wednesday night.

There are one or two cities in the United States having a population of more than 20,000 that has no white way. All of the civic organizations have united in the movement and supporters expressed confidence this afternoon that the project would successfully go through. The city is being asked only to maintain the system after it is installed by the private property owners.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

EDUCATIONAL SIDE OF RADIO URGED

New Jersey Leads States in Union in Develop- ment of Wireless Work in Schools.

Probably no state in the Union has been as completely captivated by radio as New Jersey, and certainly no other has taken official cognizance of the widespread interest. The following extract taken from a report of the state department of education indicates the great hold that wireless has taken in the schools since the radio-phonograph became popular. The report contains a resume of the situation in the schools of the larger New Jersey cities, showing that hundreds of pupils are actively engaged in experiments.

The sudden awakening of popular interest in radio telephone broadcasting has made great demands upon the manual training departments of the New Jersey public schools for the constructing of receiving sets.

Probably no scientific development has ever taken such a hold on the school boy as radio has and teachers of shop work have recognized the tremendous educational possibilities in the making of wireless sets in the home and schools.

Early Development in Schools. Several years ago radio sets were made in the manual arts departments and the project seemed worth while but the boys' interest could not long be sustained so long as the dot-and-dash system of signals only was available. Now the opportunity of hearing the actual voices, words, songs, and music of the best kind has taken this project out of the merely experimental stage and made practice every boy anxious to build and own a wireless set for his own use.

Every effort has been made in our schools throughout New Jersey to give boys a chance to design and build radio sets. The shop teachers have made a special study of radio construction, and boys have been given an opportunity to make various types of wireless sets.

Schools Have Sets. Schools have installed large radio sets. Montclair, N. J., has erected over its high school an aerial that equals in size and construction those seen at broadcasting stations. A receiving set has been installed in the physics department and at the last meeting of the board of education money was voted for the purchase of a sending set. Many of the high school boys are licensed radio operators. In the manual arts department of the grammar school of Montclair over 600 wireless sets have been made.

Boys working on radio sets have not limited the time within school hours but have worked with their shop instructors after the close of the regular school day and many of the instructors report that a great deal of work has been an after-school activity.

Boys are learning more through wireless, about electrical circuits, batteries, the telephone, and other and other phases of electricity than our text books can ever hope to teach.

Listening in. Farmers and others in Lewistown, Ohio, were surprised and a little frightened recently when, while for the most part working in the fields, they suddenly heard voices coming out of the air. Investigation showed that the voices were no supernatural manifestations, but the occasion of the installation of powerful receiving apparatus with a magnavox on the top of the local school house.

The first experiments were so successful that the daily program of The Detroit News station in WJZ will be broadcast regularly for the amusement and information of the farmers in the neighboring fields, and their wives in the neighboring kitchens.

"Who can tell what the agricultural blue will be asking when the farmers begin to sow and reap to jazz?" Many radio listeners will sympathize with the advice contained in a letter sent by George H. Dornan, company, the publishers, to seventy-five of their authors, advising the latter to be sure they have a good "voice personality" before attempting a lecture via the ether.

LESSON NO. 61. ADJUSTMENT OF THE CRYSTAL DETECTOR.

Certain types of minerals, such as galena, silicon or carbondurum possess the valuable property of rectification. One of these crystals used as a detector and properly connected in a receiving circuit rectifies the high frequency oscillations, intercepted by the antenna, into pulsating direct currents. These pulsations are then converted into audible sounds through vibration of the diaphragms in the receiving telephones. Crystals are usually mounted in a metal cup and held firmly in place by being surrounded with a metal having a low fusing point. This cup forms one terminal of the detector, the other terminal being, in the majority of cases, a pointed contact so adjustable as to be moved over the surface of the crystal until a sensitive spot is located which produces maximum audibility in the receiving telephones. In some cases two crystals are mounted so as to be used together, as for example, in the Zincite Bronzite type of detector.

The value of a crystal detector rests in its property of sensitiveness to the incoming oscillations and its ability to stay in adjustment. Some crystals, of which galena is an example, although highly sensitive, are difficult to retain in adjustment, due to the fact that contact is maintained by the slight pressure of a delicate wire on the surface of the crystal. Other crystals may be less sensitive, but are more stable in adjustment, as they require the firm pressure of a sharp point for maximum audibility. Carborundum, for example, when used as a detector, necessitates comparatively heavy pressure at the point of contact. The sensitive spot on a crystal for properly receiving the incoming signals can only be located by experiment, which consist of moving the contact point over the surface of the crystal until maximum signals are obtained. By the use of a test buzzer a detector consisting of galena used in conjunction with a delicate wire, may be maintained in adjustment whether or not signals are being radiated from a transmitting station. A simple circuit for a form of test buzzer is shown in the accompanying diagram.

A small high frequency buzzer (B) is connected in series with two dry batteries (A) and a push button (C). A wire is connected from the contact side of the buzzer to the terminal of the detector (D) which supports the fine wire compact as shown in the diagram. Pressing the button operates the buzzer and the fine wire contact may be moved over the crystal until the maximum sound is heard in the receiving telephones. With this location of the contact point the crystal in adjustment for the incoming signals.

Radio Broadcasting at Arlington. Recent additions to the naval wireless station at Radio, Va. (Arlington) will soon provide facilities for a regular broadcasting service on a wavelength of 2,450 meters. This station is well known as the source of radio signals, and for some time amateurs have been hearing test calls by voice from this station to New Orleans, Bar Harbor and Norfolk. With a proposed range of approximately 1,500 miles this station will enable the president and other government officials to transmit messages and speeches to all parts of the eastern and middle western states. (Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor: I was going to construct a radio receiving set and asked the landlord for permission to put it up, but he said that it would harm his insurance and attract lightning. Do the insurance companies allow you to put them up? W. McK.

If an aerial is properly installed it will not attract lightning nor affect your insurance. It would be safer to ask for the insurance companies' inspection.

Radio Editor: Can enclosed wire be used for the lead-in and ground? What size is it? A. R.

The wire you enclose is No. 18, and is too small for a ground lead, as the law requires that this be No. 14 or larger.

Prisoner Drinks Poison and Falls At Officer's Feet

Rome, Ga., June 5.—(Special).—While seated in the city recorder's court room, just after having been fined on a charge of having been drunk Saturday night, John H. Strickland, a prominent farmer of Floyd county, living about ten miles from Rome, asked an officer to go down stairs with him to get a drink of water and when he obtained the water, he poured into it a quantity of liquid from a bottle, and swallowed it, and at once fell to the floor. He was rushed to a hospital but died on the way.

Strickland had recently sustained many financial reverses. He told the officer who was with him that he was going to get water that he had medicine prescribed by a local physician in the bottle and he was using it to try to quit drinking whiskey. He was a large family. A coroner's inquest may be held to determine whether he committed suicide.

Supreme Court Will Take More Time to Decide Liquor Case

Washington, June 5.—The supreme court today announced it would not decide at this time whether expert testimony as to the alcohol content of liquor must be given to permit conviction on a charge of possessing or dispensing intoxicating liquor.

Al Vesley was convicted in the United States district court for southern California on two counts, charging him with maintaining a place for the sale of intoxicating liquor and with having sold such liquor. The circuit court of appeals sustained his conviction notwithstanding his contention, which he sought to bring to the supreme court, that it was necessary for conviction to produce expert evidence, that the liquor sold was intoxicating within the meaning of the law.

JOE BURTON HEADS AMUSEMENT MEN

At the general meeting of the Georgia Amusement Protective association held at the Analee hotel Monday, the tentative by-laws under which the organization has been functioning since its inception last July were formally adopted and permanent officers elected to serve for the ensuing year.

Joe Burton, of the Star theater, Toccoa, was chosen president; Mrs. Charles Cindola, of the Alamo theater, Gainesville, first vice president; R. J. Edenfield, of the Dreamland theater, Augusta, second vice president, and Y. F. Freeman, of the Southern enterprises, Atlanta, was made treasurer.

Patterson Heads Committee. Willard Patterson, of the Metropolitan and Criterion theaters, Atlanta, was made chairman of the executive committee. Serving with Mr. Patterson will be A. E. Johnson, Strand theater, Valdosta; Mrs. M. E. James, Strand theater, Athens; O. C. Lane, Elite theater, Rome; Thomas W. Hogan, Bonita theater, Canton, and H. E. Center, Palace theater, Lafayette. Miss Anna Eugene Aiken, publisher of the Weekly Film Review, was chosen by the executive committee to serve as secretary.

The purpose of the organization as outlined by Y. F. Freeman, who presided as temporary chairman, "for the mutual protection of the exhibitors of the affiliated interests and to care for the public relations of the industry within the state of Georgia." While the majority of members at the present time are motion picture theater men the organization, as its name implies, is intended to embrace the amusement industry generally. Eighty-two theaters, representing every section of the state, are already affiliated with the association, which is less than a year old, having been formed last July.

Indorse Will H. Hays. An outstanding feature of the meeting was the indorsement by the association of the work of Will H. Hays, as president of the Motion Picture producers and distributors, and the motion by which the Georgia organization pledged its support to all constructive measures initiated by Mr. Hays in pursuance of his program. Under the provisions of the by-laws the Georgia Amusement Protective association will hold two general meetings annually—one the first Monday in July in Atlanta, the other, which will be approximately six months later to be held at some point to be chosen by the executive committee.

Woman Slayer Says Deed Was Act of Charity

Kansas City, Mo., June 5.—No charges will be filed for the present against Miss Peggy Marie Beal, who Saturday shot and killed Frank Warren Anderson, local department store welfare director, and then tried to end her life. C. L. Orr, prosecutor, said today. Physicians reported that unless complications developed the young woman will recover.

Miss Beal today refused to affirm or deny reports that she had been married and was the mother of a four year old son.

"I've told you I had no one," she said. "I'm not sorry that I did it. It was an act of charity to save other girls from similar heartaches."

The shooting occurred at a hotel, where the couple had registered as man and wife. Miss Beal told officers she came here with the understanding that she and Anderson were to be married. She said she shot him because he had misled her about his affairs with other women.

REPORTS HISBAND AND TWO CHILDREN.

Dayton, O., June 5.—Marie L. Beal, who shot and instantly killed Frank W. Anderson, in a Kansas City hotel last Saturday and then attempted suicide, was married in Dayton fourteen years ago and her husband, Frank Beal, and two sons are living in Terre Haute, Ind., according to J. "How long—will this go on?"

Joan drew herself up. The fierceness of the prophetic was in her dark face.

"Till my hands are upon him," she said. "Till I have dragged him out from the shadows of this hateful city."

Douglas-Jesson had his opportunity, accepted it, and became one of the elect. He passed on to the staff of The Courier, where his work was spasmodic and of a leisurely character, but always valuable and appreciated. His salary, which was liberal, seemed to him magnificent. Besides, he had the opportunity of doing other work. All the magazines were open to him, although he was tied down to write for no other newspaper. The passionate effort of one night of misery had brought him out forever from among the purgatory of the unrecognized. For his work was full of grit, often brilliant, never dull. Even Drexley, who hated him, admitted it. Emily De Reuss was charmed.

Douglas's first visit was to Rice, whom he dragged out with him to London, ordering such luxuries as were seldom asked for at Spargetti's. They lingered over their cigarettes and talked much. Yet about Rice there was a certain restraint, the more noticeable because of the host's gaiety. Douglas, well-dressed, debonair, with a flower in his buttonhole, and never a wrinkle upon his handsome face, was in no humor for reservations. He filled his companion's glass brimful of wine and attacked him boldly.

"I want to know," he said, "what ails my philosophic friend. Out with it, man. Has Drexley been more of a bear than usual, or has Spargetti ceased his credit?"

"Neither," Rice answered smiling. "Drexley is always a bear, and Spargetti's credit is a thing which not one of the chosen has ever seen the bottom of."

"Then what in the name of all that is unholy?" Douglas asked, "ails you?"

A rare seriousness fell upon Rice. The nonchalance, which was the most pronounced of his mannerisms, had fallen away. It was a new man speaking. One saw as it were for the first time, that his hair was gray and that the lines on his face were deeply engraved.

"My young friend," he said, "I want you to listen to me. I am twice your age. I have seen very much more of the world than you. Years ago I had a friend—Silverton. He was about your age—clever, ambitious, good-looking. He scored a small success—a poem I think it was—and someone took him one day to call on Emily De Reuss. I do not know where he is now, but two months ago I met him in rags, far advanced in consumption, an utter wreck bodily and mentally. Yet when I spoke one word of her he struck me across the lips. Today I suppose he is dead—pauper's funeral and all that sort of thing without a doubt. I have taken his case first because he reminded me of you. He had come from the north somewhere, and he was about your age. But he is only one of a score."

"There is Drexley, a broken man. Once he wrote prose, which of his sort was the best thing going. Today he is absolutely nerveless. He cannot write a line, and he is drinking heavily. That he has not gone under altogether is simply because as yet he has not received his final dismissal. He still has his uses so he is allowed to hang on a little longer. Now, Douglas-Jesson, listen to one who knows. What you are and who you are—well, no matter. I liked you when you met here, and you have a splendid opportunity before you. Listen: Emily De Reuss will care nothing for your safety. Be a man and do the sensible thing. Too many have been her victims. It may make your heart ache a little; you may fancy yourself a little ungracious. Never mind, you will save your life and your soul. Go abroad as soon as Rawlinson will send you."

Rice's words were too impressive to be disregarded altogether. They stirred up in Douglas's mind a vague uneasiness, but his sense of loyalty to the woman who had befriended him was unshaken. Rice was led away by his feelings for his friend.

"Rice," he said, "I know you're speaking what you believe. I can't quite accept it all. Never mind, I'll remember everything you've said. I'm not quite a boy, you know, and I don't wear my heart upon my sleeve."

"Hard to convince as they all are," Rice said, with a wistful smile. "Never mind, I'll do my best to save you. Listen to this: Do you know why Drexley behaved so disgracefully to you about your story?"

Douglas looked up eagerly. The thing had always puzzled him.

"No. Why?"

"Because he had orders from Emily De Reuss to do so. She had given you her address and bidden you go and see her. You never went. So she wrote Drexley to give you no encouragement. It was your punishment. You were to go to her."

"I don't believe it," Douglas declared hotly.

"Then you don't believe me," Rice said quietly, "for on my honor, I tell you that I have seen the letter."

Douglas leaned his head upon his hand.

"I'm sorry," he said wearily. "I believe absolutely in you, but I believe also in her. There must be some misunderstanding."

Rice rose up. Douglas had paid the bill long ago. A waiter, overcome with the magnificence of his tip, brought them their hats and preceded them, smiling, to the door. They passed out into the street, and the fresh air was grateful to them both. Rice passed his arm through his companion's.

"I want you to give me just an hour," he said, "no more."

Douglas nodded, and they made their way through a maze of squares and streets southward. At last Rice stopped before a house in a terrace of smoke-begrimed tenements, and led the way inside. They mounted flight after flight of stairs, pausing at last before a door on the topmost floor. Rice threw it open, and motioned his companion to follow.

"My friend," he said, "I have brought you here because I wanted you to see my home. Shall I tell you why? Because it is exactly typical of my life. Bare and empty, comfortable, with never a bright spot nor a ray of hope. There is nothing here to damle you, is there? All that you can remark in its favor is that it is tolerably clean—all in my life that I can lay claim to is that I have managed to preserve a moderate amount of self-respect. This is my life, my present and my future. I wanted you to see it."

Douglas was puzzled. He scarcely knew what to say, but instinctively he felt that Rice's purpose in bringing him here had not yet been explained. So he waited.

"I have told you," Rice continued, "of Drexley and of poor young Silverton. I have told you that there have been many others. I have told you that she even tried to do you ill that you might be numbered among her victims. Now I tell you what as yet I have told no man. I, too, was once the most pitiful of her slaves."

"You?"

A sharp, staccato cry broke from Douglas's lips. He had not expected this. Rice was suddenly an older man. The careless front he showed to the world was gone. He was haggard, weary, elderly. It was a rare moment with him.

"I made a brave start," he continued, "like you. Someone took me to her house. I made an epigram that pleased her; I passed at once into the circle of her intimates. She flattered me, dazzled me, fed my ambition and my passion. I told her of the girl whom I loved, whom I was engaged to marry. She was on the surface sympathetic; in reality, she never afterward let pass an opportunity of making some scathing remark as to the folly of a young man sacrificing a possibly brilliant future for the commonplace joys of domesticity. I became even as the rest. My head was turned; my letters to Alice became less frequent; every penny of the money I was earning went to pay my tailor's bills, and to keep pace with the life which, as her constant companion, I was forced to live. All the while the girl who trusted me never complained, but was breaking her heart. They sent for me—she was unwell. I had promised to take Emily upon the river, and she declined to let me off. I think that evening some premonition of the truth came to me. We saw a child drowned. I watched Emily's face. She looked at the corpse without a shudder, with frank and brutal curiosity. She had never seen anything really dead—it was quite interesting. Well, I hurried back to my rooms, meaning to catch a night train into Devonshire. On the mantelpiece was a telegram which had come early in the morning. Alice was worse—her only hope was in my speedy coming. I dashed into a hansom, but on the step another telegram was handed to me. Alice was dead. I had not seen her for ten months, and she was dead."

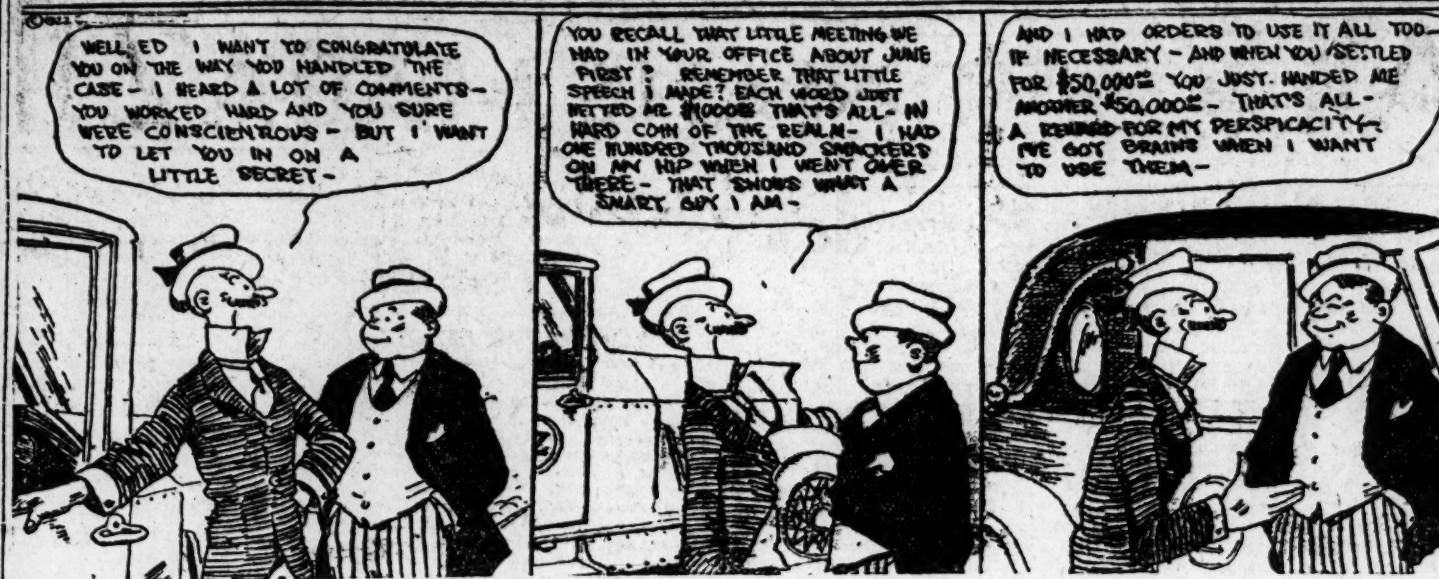

That very day Douglas went to Emily De Reuss and told her he must get to work and not see her so much. Of course, she was disturbed, but she concealed her anger, which showed signs of bursting its bounds when Douglas told her that Rice had influenced him to take this step.

CHAPTER XX.

Whether Rice's point of view and judgment upon Emily De Reuss certainly passed from her influence into a more robust and invigorating literary life. He gave up his expensive chambers, sold the furniture, reorganized his expenses, and took a single room in a dull little street, off the Strand. Rice, aided by a few friends, and also by Douglas's own growing reputation, secured his admission into the same bohemian club to which he and Dudley belonged. For the first time Douglas began to meet those who were, strictly speaking, his fellows, and the wonderful good comradeship of his newly adopted profession was a thing gradually revealed to him. He made friends, studied hard, and did some brilliant work. He abandoned upon calmer reflection the idea of going abroad, and was given to understand that this position on the Courier might be regarded as a permanent one.

One night Douglas wandered restlessly from room to room of the club, returning the greetings of his acquaintance with a certain vagueness, lingering nowhere for more than a moment or two. Finally, he took his hat from the rack and walked out in the street. But as he walked slowly down, jostled by many passers-by, there came upon him a shock so sudden and so overwhelming that the very pavement seemed to yawn at his feet. Toward him two women were slowly walking, holding their own in the press of the crowd, one with horrified eyes already fastened upon him, the other as yet unconscious of his presence. Nearer and nearer they came, and although every impulse of his body bade him fly, his limbs were rigid and every muscle seemed frozen. For the women were Joan and her sister Cicely.

After all, it was the woman who sought him who passed him by, her unwilling companion who recognized him at once, in spite of his altered dress and bearing. They were swallowed up in the crowd before Douglas had recovered himself. Something in Cicely's terrified gaze had instantly checked his first impulse, which prompted him to accost them. They were gone, leaving him alike speechless.

I never raised my hand against him. I should have very hard work to prove it, I fancy, but I am wholly innocent of his death—innocent, that is to say, so far as any direct action of mine was concerned.

"Ah!"

had already made a name and attained a unique position. There came no word from Emily De Reuss, for which he was thankful, and when he left the office at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, and lighting a cigarette, strolled through a network of streets dren's fairy stories. Now I don't want you to be bothered about it, but I do wish you could give me an idea where to send them."

"You have some written?"

She smiled.

"I have two in that little parcel looking for a vacant seat. Douglas touched his arm.

"Sit here, Drexley," he said. "We're off in a minute, and then you can have the whole table."

Drexley thanked him and surrendered his hat and coat to the waiter.

Douglas leaned across to Cicely. "Cicely," he said, "let me introduce Mr. Drexley to you. Mr. Drexley—Miss Strong. Mr. Drexley will probably be my first victim on your behalf."

and bewildered. He staggered into a small restaurant, and sitting at an unoccupied table, called for a bottle of wine.

The next morning the following advertisement appeared in most of the London newspapers:

"To C. S. L.—Must see you. British Museum today at 6."

For three days Douglas watched in vain. On the fourth his heart gave a great leap, for a sombre little figure stepped out from an omnibus at the corner of Russell square and stood hesitatingly upon the pavement, looking in through the iron bars at the museum. He came across the street to her boldly—she turned and saw him. After all, the greeting approached the conventional. He remembered to raise his hat—she held out her hand—would have withdrawn it, but found it already clasped in his.

"Cicely. How good of you. You saw my advertisement?"

"Yes."

"And you saw me in the Strand, but you would not speak to me. Was that because of Joan?"

"Yes."

"I want to talk to you," he said. "I have so much to say."

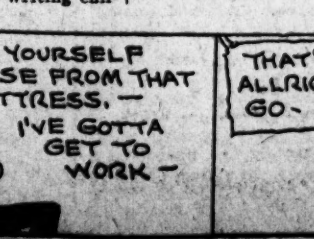

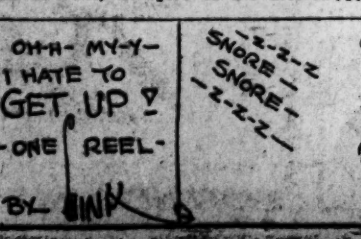

She raised her eyes to his and he saw for the first time how much thinner she was.

"Douglas," she said, "there is something I must ask you first of all before I stay with you for a moment. Must I put it into words?"

"I do not think you need, Cicely," he answered. "I went to your father's room last night beyond a doubt, but

REAL AND IMITATION

"A high degree of exclusiveness is only attained by do-nothings and only appreciated by know-nothings."

What a mistake people make when they think that they prove their aristocracy and superiority by being very exclusive, and rude to all "common people."

At an inn where I once stayed there were two middle-aged women who made an interesting contrast.

Stars an Insult.

One of these women was exceedingly aloof. She did not even say good morning to people when she passed them in the hall. She always sat at a table by herself. She had a way of looking at people with a scrutinizing, disagreeable stare that was a positive insult. If she had been a man, some other man would surely have knocked her down for it. She plainly intended to convey the impression that she preferred solitude to having anything to do with people so much beneath her. Nobody had the slightest desire to intrude on that solitude, for no one liked her.

The other woman was reserved, but gracious. She always said good morning pleasantly to all her housemates. She did not spend much time in the common living room, but when she did she was courteous and gracious to everyone. Everyone liked her except one or two people who had wanted to be more intimate than she cared to be, and had been fended off by the screen of her dignity and reserve.

She wasn't because—

I fancy the first woman thought she was giving a picture of a "gentlewoman" obliged by reduced circumstance to live among common people. As a matter of fact she couldn't give such a picture because she did not know anything about gentlemen. She had been able to pretend she did until someone who knew her chance to come to the inn and recognized her. It then came out that she had been a waitress in a restaurant, who, after a struggle to prevent it on the part of her family, had married an elderly man of good family and some money. His people had refused to receive her and she cut herself adrift from her own. He had died, hence her loneliness.

The other woman, who was gracious and pleasant to all, was a real gentlewoman from one of the finest families in the state, and had actually known great wealth and luxury.

The Difference Between.

The difference in their manner was the inevitable difference between the real and the imitation gentlewoman.

The real gentlewoman is reserved, but she is never rude.

The imitation gentlewoman is rude because she does not know how to be dignified and reserved, and at the same time gracious and well bred.

We've all met both kinds, and, though we may have been fooled for a time, it was never for long.

SURE CARDUI
WAS HELPFUL

Ohio Lady Was Suffering, in Bad Condition, Weak, Nervous and Run-down.—Now She Recommends Cardui.

Manchester, Ohio.—In describing the troubles with which she was formerly afflicted, and telling how she obtained relief, Mrs. Ida B. Rothwell, of this place, said:

"For some time I had a terrible hurting in my side. It was a most miserable feeling. I could hardly turn myself in bed."

"I was weak, nervous and run-down."

"I did not have an appetite, and was in a bad condition. I was suffering, at... time I had hard bearing-down pains."

"I began Cardui. A half bottle helped me."

Mrs. Rothwell said she then decided to take Cardui regularly, and did so until she recovered her strength.

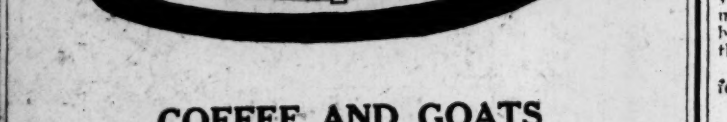

"I certainly suffered before I took this treatment," she adds, "and was very discouraged."

Writing further of her experience, this Ohio lady says:

"I can't praise it (Cardui) too highly, for it has helped me when other things failed. I think there is no medicine like Cardui, for it sure has been helpful, and I recommend it to all my friends."

Thousands of other women have learned of the value of Cardui in the treatment of their troubles.

COFFEE AND GOATS

History tells us that the virtues of coffee were first made known to men by means of goats.

Some monks in Arabia noticed that goats near the monastery were very sprightly and frolicsome after eating the berries of coffee bushes which grew wild there.

The monks gathered coffee berries, made a brew of them and so learned the virtues of "The cup that cheers but not inebriates."

The fame of coffee spread rapidly and in a few years coffee houses were the most popular resorts in London for gentlemen of fashion.

Nowadays the coffee goat is the man who has an inferior article palmed off on him. To avoid that fate drink

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, who possesses a superlative degree of quality of "tires" wished for her at birth by her youthfulness. Marjorie Langley, herself a notable beauty to whom

Stephen Dale, a wealthy bachelor, had been devoted for years. Impetuously declared her love for Dale, and is gently told by him that he can never marry because there is a trace of insanity in his family. To soothe her pride, she elopes with and marries

Alex Leigh, a young navy officer, whose uncle, Admiral Armstrong, is sentimentally interested in Marjorie Langley, at the same time being a friend of Diana's. Sylvia Bennett, a friend of Diana, married Ted Saunders, a hopeless suitor, for Diana's "coming out" and then leaves her to discover that Ted is a scoundrel. She also discovers that Alex is jealous and dictatorial and meeting with complete disillusionment, begins a flirtation with Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance, whom she meets on the train. Getting off the train for a bit of exercise, Diana and Johnston are left behind at a small New Mexican town.

After discovering that there is no means of leaving the town that night, they are met by a strange woman, who tells them the rider, who turns out to be Pedro Dominguez, invites them to his ranch and against Johnston's wishes, Diana accepts.

Resting at the ranch, Diana received a note from Dominguez saying that Johnston would not be at dinner. She dines alone with Dominguez, who informs her that Johnston is seriously ill and will be dead tomorrow. Dominguez proposes that she abandon his supposed claim on Diana and that she marry him instead.

INSTANTLY XXXII. A communication from Johnston. Diana never quite remembers what answer she made to Pedro Dominguez' amazing proposal.

Accused as she was to offer of marriage from infatuated young men, she was completely disconcerted by the suddenness and the bizarre aspect of the Spaniard's offer.

Something had warned her not to attempt to thwart him openly. This was a game which required subtlety. He was not a Ted Saunders or an Alex Leigh, to be told laughingly that she made a corking good sister.

So, controlling her amusement and disquietude, she merely asked for time to consider his proposal, a request which was graciously granted. He escorted her back to her apartment and bid her good night at the door, touching his lips to her hand with the grace of a true Spanish courtier.

Diana went into the room and closed the door with a long-drawn breath of relief. It was dimly lighted with candles, and she cast an apprehensive glance toward the shadowy doorway, but there was no one there, and she seated herself on a long couch under the open window and tried to think.

She wished she could see Lynn Johnston for a few minutes. True, he had proved rather a broken reed that afternoon, but merely the sight of someone from her world would have been comforting at that moment.

Johnston knew Marjorie—and possibly Dale.

A lump came into Diana's throat and unconsciously her hand went to her throat in a pathetic gesture. What wouldn't she have given for the clasp of his strong hands and the quiet assurance of his dark eyes?

And yet she hadn't been able to make him care, while in an afternoon, Diana smiled bitterly at the irony of it.

A sound at the door brought her to her feet, her heart fluttering with fright.

A little Mexican maid who had served her in the afternoon, Diana made a gesture of dismissal, denoting that she did not require further service, but to her surprise, the girl came close and laid a small package in her lap.

Diana picked it up and looked at it curiously.

No address, so she pointed to it and then to herself, with inquiring raised brows.

The girl nodded.

Diana tore it open. A roll of money fell into her lap and out of the center of the bill dropped a letter.

"Diana," she read, "in case this greaser doesn't double-cross me and make off with the money, these bills may get you back to civilization. God knows how you'll manage it, but you must make the attempt somehow. Our amiable host is 'detaining' me in a nice room with iron bars at the windows and trying to make me believe that I am suffering from sunstroke or some other damn thing that you are likely to get in this country. He knows I'm not fooled, but he will have his little joke. Obviously getting me out of the way is the preliminary for making love to you, so, for heaven's sake be warned this time, if you wouldn't be before, and find some means of escape. I know I would like a first-class idiot advising you to do the practically impossible, but maybe this girl, or her lover, or somebody, will help you out of the jam if you have a few of these yellowbacks under her nose. At any rate, it will be a hopeful sign if she really delivers the money to you."

"Good luck, girl, and forgive me for letting you get into this."

Diana reread the letter thoughtfully.

So Dominguez had been telling when he said Johnston was too ill to join them at dinner.

She looked at the girl, who was half-kneeling, half-crouched, on a rug at her feet.

Could she expect any assistance there? And even if the girl were open to bribery, how could she ever make her understand, when she couldn't speak a word of English, and she, Diana, had no Spanish?

On a chance, she held up the roll of bills, pointed to herself, made a gesture outward much as Dominguez had made when he had revealed the secret to her enchanted gaze, and she, Diana, had no Spanish?

Before she had the opportunity to note the effect of her sign language, there was a step in the corridor outside her apartment and a light tap on the door.

"Madre de Dios!" breathed the girl. With a look of terror on her face, she reached out, snatched the bills and hid them in the bosom of her dress.

A moment later, the door was opened from without and Dominguez entered the room.

Another fine installment of this story tomorrow.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

Between brothers and sisters love is not uncommon, but much more often we find that there exists between them a curious indifference as if they expected from each other no surprise, no stimulus. Sometimes the brother refuses to take his sister to a dance on an evening when no other man is available. Or he comments freely before other people of her appearance and her clothes. He assumes a right to brotherly contempt and thinks it is excused by his rough affection.

Naturally one cannot expect brothers and sisters who have seen each other at unfortunate moments for twenty years to treat each other with reverence, but they can maintain courtesy, and it is the girl's job rather than the man's to see to it that this is done. Many girls do not make the best of their brothers; they allow the relationship to be soured. If the brother is rude they answer rudely, and this becomes a habit. The only way to cope with a brother is to show him that his conduct is unworthy of his breeding, to tell him simply that his sister retains feminine rights even though she is his sister. There should be no scene, but if a brother disappoints his sister in an engagement, he should be quietly asked whether he would have disappointed Dorrie whose company he affects. The brother should not be allowed by his position in the family to assume any kind of clothing, or to wear things which he would not say before other people's sisters. She should assert herself, and if she will take an interest in him and his affairs she will find that she is listened to. She must be ready to give, and many girls are, at the same time she must be ready to take.

DRESS BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

The white crepe gown, simple and graceful, holds its own with the fastidious public while more ornate embroidered frocks are left alone until a formal occasion demands them. France is at the head of this type of gown as America, and a woman is safe in choosing it for the next six months.

There is a letter from Paris which has certain points of interest to every American; therefore, it may not be amiss to repeat it. It concerns the frocks that women of society, not only French, but add nations who are in Paris, have chosen to wear during May, which is the height of the season.

"After showing sumptuous models for evening wear in the February collections, the wise dressmaker has put them aside to be shown only to a select few. She has accepted the inevitable in making more and more crepe frocks. If she has an occasional client who might suggest something more elaborate she embroiders the plain model in crystal beads, calls it a robe of ceremony, and the client is satisfied. The dressmaker who is making a specialty of these frocks to the exclusion of all others is the one who is doing the greatest amount of business."

"There seems to be absolutely no way of persuading women to discard their youthful little crepe frocks for the evening. They are more comfortable to dance in, and so long as the simplicity of a frock exaggerates its youthful appearance, that feature alone, regardless of comfort, will cause women to cling to that type of gown."

"Many of these white crepe dancing frocks are embroidered in tiny crystal beads, but they are smart without embroidery. One sees them at the Hotel Ritz at the Sunday night dinner where all smart Americans foregather, and at Ciro's on Saturday night, sometimes in red with a black jet belt."

The sketch shows one of the gowns in Paris this spring. The belt is of crystal and jet beads with strings of the beads hanging at the side. The two-tiered skirt is another fashion that will be repeated throughout the summer.

which has had unusual success abroad. It is of white crepe, the skirt cut in two tiers and the girls made of crystal and jet beads. It hangs in two long ends at one side. The bodice is sleeveless and the very low waistline is omitted.

The skirt is much in evidence. It is the newest rival of the draped skirt. There are three flounces put on tailored suits or afternoon frocks. These flounces are supposed to give youth, and they do prevent an exaggeration of the curves of the figure given by a tightly draped gown over an elastic girdle. They may have been invented for this purpose. Or they may have been invented to emphasize the new movement for wide straight skirts as opposed to all others.

A NEW COMBINATION FOR EVENING WEAR.

From fan to parasol in one jiffy—just by a deft movement the handle of a circular ostrich feather fan becomes the handle of a tiny feather parasol. The fan is quite obviously for evening wear so the parasol must be to keep one from getting moon-struck while strolling on the balcony.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Repairing at Home.

Resole your bedroom slippers with soles cut the right shape and size from an old felt hat.

Quick Boiling.

If you want contents of a saucepan to cook rapidly, never leave a spoon in it, as it carries away heat and delays boiling.

Fruit Tarts.

Mix a little cornstarch with the sugar when adding it to a fruit tart. This will make the juice thick and prevent it from boiling over.

Buckets and Washtubs.

All wooden buckets and washtubs should have about two inches of water left in them when not in use. This prevents them from becoming too dry and the wood from shrinking, causing leakage.

Told in Passing.

Tomato rubbed into the hands will remove fruit stains.

Never put anything with a strong odor in a lunch basket.

A coarse grater is the most effective utensil for scaling a fish.

Add a little celery salt to potato soup to give it a delicious flavor.

Mercury can be removed from gold jewelry by a soft-soap eraser.

Ingredients for salad dressings should always be chilled before mixing.

Miss Harper, Hostess At Bridge-Luncheon.

Miss Lucy Elizabeth Harper will entertain with a lovely bridge-luncheon at the Piedmont Driving club at 11 o'clock in honor of Miss Mary Stoney, a bride-elect.

Miss Stoney's attendants will be the guests.

Women may now serve in the vestry in Episcopal churches of Connecticut and may be elected to the office of clerk and treasurer.

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS.

Oliver S.—When the hair grows below the line on the back of the neck, it can be trained by vigorous brushing so these stray hairs are caught up into the body of the hair and kept in place under the hair net. If you do this constantly you will find these hairs disappear, but since you have strengthened this growth by shaving, it will take a long time to effect it; however, it is the only thing you can do now as either clipping or shaving will only make matters worse.

L. H.—An excellent astringent is made from one part white of egg to six parts water. This is to be used only when giving the skin a special treatment, as it is painted all over the face and throat and allowed to dry on the skin for fully fifteen minutes; after which it is removed with warm water. The skin should then be given as much cream as it will absorb and either an ice rub or dashes of very cold water to close the pores, completes the treatment. Simple astringents for general use may be either toilet waters or a few drops of benzoin in water. When using the latter the amount of benzoin is decided by the appearance of the water. The proper strength is attained as soon as the water looks milky.

Nancy—Agar agar is usually taken in the morning with the breakfast and a convenient method is to sprinkle it over the breakfast cereal. A tablespoonful or less as required.

Fern—If you have been taking a diet which has not contained enough vitamins, you will be benefited by taking yeast for a time, as it will supply these elements. Yeast also counteracts the acidity which happens when the stomach is taxed with digesting heavy or very starchy foods. However, the yeast food can be overdone and as soon as the digestion is improved and the skin shows that the blood is cleared, stop the yeast and eat the foods which will give you all the vitamins that are needed.

S. K.—Florida.—In some cases, warts will dissolve through applications of olive or castor oil each night. In others, turpentine rubbed into the warts once daily for three days, will cause them to dry up and drop off. Another treatment is to moisten the wart and rub into it coarse salt once each day for a week. If such things fail, any doctor can remove ordinary warts with acid. A silk thread tied around warts that stand out from the skin will literally choke them to death.

Red Head—Puffiness under the eyes shows poor functioning of the kidneys or the liver. Consult your doctor. Smooth out the lines in the forehead by working into them a good cream while you use the finger tips after the manner of ironing out a crease. But, this will not eradicate

It Will Pay to Investigate Before Buying Your Window Shades

Certain points of superiority in these shades of high quality make them worth more to you than the difference in initial cost.

Extreme durability is assured by material of best quality. Very fine count heavy cambric is treated with high-grade white lead, linseed oil and colors. Hence these shades are proof against cracks and splitting.

Superior rollers of extra size are employed—1 1/4-inch diameter instead of the usual 1-inch. This makes for efficiency in operating, and adds again to the lasting qualities.

Skilled hand labor makes each shade carefully to the dimensions of each window. Shades cannot be better made. Genuine imported Holland shade cloth or the double faced shade fabrics.

FAIR'S VALUE TO ATHLETICS

BY M. D. GLEASON.

Very few people have given much thought to what a fair held in Atlanta would do to promote athletics of every kind all over the south. As the climate is so much better in Atlanta in the fall of the year than in the northern cities, would it not be reasonable to expect that most of the big colleges would want games with our local colleges not only the year of the fair, but also the year before.

Atlanta is well known the world over in golfing circles through the great game our amateurs have been playing for several years, and a strong committee, appointed for the purpose of securing the national tournaments for that year would come very near accomplishing its purpose.

The south would have the opportunity of seeing the best track and field men in the world, as this feature, as well as aquatic sports of all kinds, will be a part of the entertainment feature of the program.

The champion boxers and wrestlers of the world will get out a map to get Atlanta located right in their minds long before the fair is on, as these men and the promoters understand the value of being in a live town.

The road and gun clubs of the world would be represented by their best marksmen. As the bicycle is again coming back, Atlanta would again see the best, as it did in the days of the past.

Everybody knows that Atlanta is a good basketball town, and another national championship tournament would draw thousands of people.

The advertising that Atlanta and the south would receive all over the world through these athletic events would be far reaching in results.

WAYCROSS PLANNING JUNIOR BALL LEAGUE

Waycross, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) Waycross is to have a junior baseball league this summer, if present plans mature. The different teams in the league are to be composed of boys between the ages of 10 and 13, and it is hoped that at least six teams can be formed.

As a beginning, each troop of boy scouts are to have a team, and the league teams will be selected largely from these teams.

The formation and management of the league will be under the direction of the local community service committee. E. K. Bennett will be president of the league, and the managers of the different teams will be selected from among the older boys in Scout Troop No. 1, of which Mr. Bennett is leader.

TENDLER-BARRETT BOUT POSTPONED

Philadelphia, June 5.—Rain late today again caused a postponement of the eight-round boxing bout between Lew Tandler, Philadelphia lightweight, and Bobby Barrett, of Clinton Heights, Pa., scheduled for the Philadelphia National League park tonight. The fight will be held tomorrow night. It was originally fixed for last Friday.

Swimming Pool Opened.
Dawson, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) The American Legion swimming pool was opened June 1. It is one of the largest and most modern natatoriums in this section. It is of reinforced concrete throughout. The flow of water is 600 gallons a minute. The crowds thus far have confirmed the legion's belief in the pool, and from present indications it will be the most popular spot in this community during the summer.

SOME NEWS BITS

BY UNITED NEWS

NEW YORK, JUNE 5.—Snob II, J. S. Couden's $85,000 colt, which has come to be regarded as a rival of the famous Morvich, will have his first real test Saturday in the running of the Belmont stakes, greatest and oldest of all three-year-old features in the country.

Snob II stands as the probable winner against a large field, including such horses as Pillory, the Pre-ness winner; Hen, a Maryland track favorite; and Relay, which is especially effective in muddy going. Pillory has once been defeated by Snob II, but his owner, R. T. Wilson, Jr., still thinks him a winner.

Snob II will meet Morvich for the first time June 24 in the Kentucky Special at Latonia.

"STUFFY" M'INNIS' error in the game with Detroit Saturday brought to a close the Cleveland infielder's new fielding record of 167 consecutive errorless games. The run began May 30, 1921, after he dropped a ball thrown to him. It was his only error last season, and he had played 119 games thereafter in 1921 and 48 errorless games in the present season until the failure of someone to cover third base Saturday left that bag unprotected when he threw.

M'INNIS had handled 1,551 putouts and 94 assists perfectly.

MISS ELIZABETH HARDIN surprised everyone but herself when she turned in a card of 81 at the start of the annual eastern championship golf play at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club, New York. A similar score, turned in by Miss Glynna Collett, of the Metacomb Golf club, Providence, R. I., winner of the qualifying round in the last national championship, had been thought unapproachable until Miss Hardin completed the round.

THEY ARE broadcasting tennis talk by radio now, so fans and net fans will understand all about the Davis cup contest this year. ## OPPORTUNITY CLASS OFFERED TO CHILDREN

A class of children of primary grade is being organized in connection with the summer session at Emory university. It will be under the supervision of Miss Delia E. Kibbe, director of remedial instruction in the School of Education in the University of Chicago.

Many children manifest an apparent inability to master reading, spelling, or some other school subject. Such cases are frequently helped very greatly by proper diagnostic processes as a result of which the correct method of instruction can be located. Miss Kibbe is a specialist in this field.

The class will meet for two hours daily, and will be under constant supervision at all times. A small tuition fee will be charged; just enough to defray the necessary expenses.

RACES CLOSE IN BIG TENT

New York, June 5.—With nearly a third of the major league season in the background, and the teams primed for the mid-season campaign, the prediction that the 1922 races would be close seem to be about borne out.

The New York clubs, despite an indifferent showing last week, have retained narrow margins in the lead, but in the National three other outfits—Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Brooklyn—are close on the heels of the Giants, and, incidentally, showing no signs of weakening. St. Louis, in the American, continues to battle neck and neck with the Yankees.

The metropolitan contenders, however, face the "acid test" beginning this week, for the second time. The Yankees are going west for a trip around the country, while the Pittsburgh and St. Louis clubs will remain in the National three other outfits—the Browns, the Red Sox and the Cubs.

The Giants must make a better stand against their rivals than they did in their recent western trip if they are to continue as pace-setters. Giants Slip Again.

Just when the McGraw men appeared last week that they were receding in their stride, the troublesome Boston Braves intervened and took three straight, after the Phillies had rallied and taken the second game of the five-game series from the champions.

It was the most disastrous week for the leaders since their rough voyage west.

Pittsburgh, although taking three out of four from Cincinnati, lost a hard-fought series to St. Louis, the Cardinals seizing an opportunity to regain some lost ground and crowd the Pirates for second position.

Brooklyn's hurling staff, especially Dutch Reuter, who has won eight straight games, is showing something like the form predicted for the start of the season. Bert Griffith, who is leading the National league batsmen, also was an effective feature of the team's winning drive.

Cincinnati, still somewhat of a "dark horse," is playing good ball; the Cubs have been handicapped by erratic pitching and none too heavy hitting, while the Braves have shown a habit of checking contenders at unexpected moments. Philadelphia is in no immediate danger of relinquishing its lead.

The St. Louis Browns, with improved pitching and more timely batting, gained on the Yankees, who were better than an even break against eastern clubs. With the advantage of a stay at home, while New York is on the road, Sisler, Williams and company have the best chance they have had so far to supplant the Yankees at the top.

Washington profited against the Red Sox during the week: The Tigers slumped badly, due to the absence of their suspended manager, Ty Cobb, and Star Singer Harry Heilmann, while the Mackmen were checked-mate by rain which left them to three games with New York.

Cleveland retrieved an otherwise disastrous week by taking four in a row from the Tigers; Chicago, although winning three of four, took only one from the fast traveling Browns, while Boston was unable to climb out of the cellar.

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"

WITH "DUGSBAER"

DEAR BIRD:
NOW IS the time for all good golfers to come to the party. As one of the most important duties in America, I must protest against Gink Fowler's claim that he once went around the Van Courtland links in seventeen, using a flat-iron for a golf ball.

Yours microscopically,
ABNER HILL,
Medford.

GINK USED NO ordinary golf implements. He was so powerful that congress had to pass legislation against him to prevent the champ from bombarding friendly countries with sliced putts.

GINK WAS THE first man in the world to start a golf match with a putt.

AFTER HE PUTTED on to the green, he would then commence his heavy hauling and driving.

HE ONCE MADE a putt that ran around Massachusetts like pigs in clover, ricocheted from a mountain and finally entered another tournament in Siberia. Thus Gink won two contests with one shot. The ball was finally discovered in another club member's pocket, for no matter how far you drove in the Roughtown links, the ball always wound up in a friend's collection of trophies.

ROUGHTOWN WAS so tough that Gink's grandmother wore a trench helmet for a boudoir cap.

MR. HILL WOULD have lasted in Roughtown about as long as an ice cream cone at a picnic.

GINK ONCE CHOPPED a stylike into a nest of ripe wolves on the home green. The Gink, using the green that day and protesting against the diabolical manner in which Gink bunkered his creditors.

SO THEY BOTH decided to settle the world's championship right there. It was a golf match around the world, using manholes, oil wells and shell holes for cutters, querries, and the Pallades for hazards and battlefields for home greens.

GINK PUTTED off Arizona right into the Gink web of Bromo's Persian palace. The Gink invited Gink to dinner. The Gink's first slice skimmed into China.

POLITICAL STUDENTS will easily see that Gink was using the monarchial form of golf while the Gink employed the republican interpretation.

THE FUTURE OF golf hinged on this match, and the hinges were getting rusty.

NEW TRAP RECORD IN DOUBLES SET
New York, June 5.—A new world record of 99 hits out of a possible 100 at double targets has been recognized officially by the American Trap-Shooting association. It was announced today. The mark is held jointly by E. F. Woodward, of Houston, Texas, and Frank Hughes, of Michigan. E. F. and Frank were made both winners at the Mississippi state championship tournament. The former doubles record was 96 out of a possible 100.

THE SPORTSMAN

BY WALTER CAMP.

WHATEVER HENRIETTA is from the change in the rig and stroke of the Yale crew, there should certainly be less strain put upon the oarsmen. No one who saw the recent regatta on the Housatonic among crews of Princeton, Cornell and Yale, saw that it was well-nigh criminal to let boys pump themselves to such a state of exhaustion as appeared in the Yale boat after a distance of less than two miles.

THERE COULD be no question that rowing on Yale rowed that day, the crew would have been unable to complete a four-mile race. Cornell, on the other hand, finished sitting up, and then rowed as easily and vigorously to their boathouse as though they had only been indulging in a "breather."

IF THIS TROUBLE in the Yale boat was the fault of the Eli stroke, then, indeed, it was high time for the change that has been made. It will be remembered that Wisconsin abandoned rowing after a careful investigation of the effects of aquatics upon Wisconsin oarsmen.

ANY SPORT that required the severe exhaustion shown in the Yale boat this year could not be of benefit to the men who swung the sweeps. It may be contended that these men were trying to row a stroke that was adapted to long-distance rowing, and rowing it at a short sprint space.

THIS MAY BE SO, but it is a fact that Oxford and Cambridge oarsmen row long and short distances without distress.

SOME OF THESE days our American golfers who have English championship aspirations will spend a year's time playing on windy courses, such as those at Atlantic City and Lido, before journeying to the other side. Then the Zephyrs will no longer have any threats for them.

LATONIA WILL OPEN TODAY

Cincinnati, June 5.—More than a thousand thoroughbreds are at Latonia here ready for the opening of the spring racing meeting tomorrow.

Indications are the meeting will be one of the most spectacular in the history of the Latonia track for in addition to the Latonia derby, a classic itself, the special $50,000 race on June 24 already is being referred to as "the classic of the century" by turf writers. In this special race, Morvich, winner of the Kentucky derby and Snob II, which won the Withers stake at Belmont will compete. The meeting will last 20 days.

VOLS PURCHASE TWO PLAYERS

Nashville, Tenn., June 5.—The purchase outright of Winn, right-hand pitcher, and Keiser, a left-hander, for $1,500 each, from the Oakland, California club, by the Nashville Southern association club, is announced today.

WESTOVER WINS RACE

New York, June 5.—Major Oscar Westover, and his aide, Lieutenant Carlton F. Bond, are the winners of the Milwaukee balloon race which started May 31. It was officially announced today by the Aero club of America. Major Westover's craft landed in the province of Quebec, covering an estimated distance of 850 miles in seventeen hours and 15 minutes in the air.

Second, place in the balloon race was captured by Captain H. E. Honeywell, with J. H. Wade, Jr., as aide, civilian entrants, who flew a distance estimated at 530 miles. Lieutenant W. F. Reed, the navy flier, came third, with an estimated flight of 440 miles. Prizes are $1,000; $800 and $500 for first, second and third places.

DAWSON WANTS REAL BASEBALL TEAM

Dawson, Ga., June 5.—At a mass meeting of the baseball enthusiasts of the city here tonight an organization was proposed and plans put on foot to get started as soon as possible. The meeting was largely attended and every one present was highly enthused at the prospects. A. J. Hill, prominent warehouseman, was elected chairman and a committee composed of the following citizens was appointed to raise the necessary funds: C. D. Coke, A. L. McLendon, T. D. Wall, Coach Moseley of Gordon institute was present by invitation and it is the desire of the fans here to bring the whole Gordon or some other college team here intact for the season.

Several propositions are under consideration, but the one from Gordon is most favorably looked upon since Coach Moseley is an old Dawson man and since two of his stars are Terrell county boys. As Tifton has obtained the whole Georgia Military college team and Albany is dickering with the University of Georgia club, no more interesting ball could be had in the state. Dawson is one of the best baseball towns in the state, having had such stars as the Thrasher brothers, Baby Wilder, Bevo Webb, Joe Palmisano and others on their roster in past years, but this will be the first local venture with an entire organized club at the start and needless to say the fans here are impatiently waiting the start of the local season.

In the Special-Six there are 1,120 mechanical operations to the accuracy of one-thousandth of an inch, 360 to one-half-thousandth.

As to the car's performance, a brief experience will reveal its superiority far more convincingly than we could tell it. Studebaker cars make friends quickly, because they give most for the money. BY MIKE THOMAS.

The first meeting of the Georgia-Alabama Professional Sportsman's Association was held last night at the Capital City Club and the general plans for the completion of the organization were drawn up and approved by the membership. The question of extending the scope of the organization was considered and this was referred to the committee selected to draw up the constitution and by-laws of the association.

The advisability of taking in the territory included in the Southern Golf association was voted down by the members owing to the fact that it is not at this time practicable to extend the scope of this recently formed organization to such wide limits. However, the membership decided that this would be considered as soon as the present organization had proved a success.

About fifty members and their guests attended the banquet at the Capital City Club and the guests were entertained for suggestions as to various phases of the work that may be accomplished by the organization. President Martin, an honorary officer of the association, made a talk on the present standing of the game with reference to the club professionals and his duties and this was received with much favor by the association members. He stressed the fact that the professionals in this country occupied a place far higher than his station in the old world, and that his responsibilities were by far greater.

H. G. Vorhies of the A. G. Spalding and Bros. company offered several suggestions and without doubt these will be accepted by the association.

Play Starts Today.
The first professional tournament of the association consisting of 72 holes of medal play will start this morning at 9 o'clock at Brookhaven, the country home of the Capital City Club. The tournament will be held on Wednesday afternoon. Jack Ingalls will have charge and is amply fitted both by experience and ability to run this affair in the proper way. The first prize is $150. Another incentive to win was mentioned by Honorary President Martin at the banquet last night. The Capital City Club is considering the bringing of Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood to Atlanta when their tour of the world starts and as an added inducement for some one of the members of the Georgia-Alabama association to win this meet the winner was offered $100 to come to Atlanta and play against this famous pair with Howard Beckett, of the Brookhaven club.

The second, third, fourth and fifth prizes in this tournament are worth $100, $75, $50, and $25, respectively and special prizes of $25 are offered.

SALLY LEAGUE

SPINNERS RALLY.

Greenville, S. C., June 5.—Greenville rallied in the seventh inning, driving Perritt from the mound, and with snappy support behind Yergin, after five errors had been made, to secure a four-run lead and defeat Columbia, 5 to 4, here today in the first game of the series.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Columbia, 130 000 000—4 13 3; Greenville, 020 010 000—5 13 5.

Batteries—Perritt, Aulenwider, Proctor and Hope; Yergin and Casey.

HOME RUN WINS.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 5.—A home run by Handley in the twelfth inning gave Augusta the first game of the series, 5 to 4, today. Reynolds was the victim of his own team's errors in the first and second innings. Thereafter he allowed but three hits, outpitching Handley.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Augusta, 130 000 000—5 7 1; Spartanburg, 020 010 000—4 13 3.

Batteries—Handley and Cady; Reynolds and Marshall.

PIPGRAVE GOOD WORK.

Charlotte, N. C., June 5.—Great pitching by Phipps in the pinches at for the best 18 holes today and tomorrow.

Charley Hall Here.
Charley Hall, who has the reputation of being one of the longest drivers in the world, is in Atlanta and played a practice round at Brookhaven yesterday, along with several others of the visiting golfers. He opened the eyes of those who have never seen his long game. His drives are phenomenal. Where the average long driver would have a mashie-iron to the green Hall has a mashie-iron to the clubhouse. He is of opinion among the pros is that if Hall's short game is up to standard he is going to be a mighty hard man to stop in this tournament.

One of the holes on the Brookhaven course in Birmingham where Hall plays regularly the distance measured by engineer's instruments is 345 yards. On several occasions Hall has been putting for three on this green. Hall will be followed by a large and interested gallery whenever he plays during this tournament.

Local Pros Entered.
Howard Beckett, of Brookhaven, Frank Ogg, of Inglewood, Bob Ogg, of Piedmont, Stewart Majors, of Great Lake, Harry Stevens, of Druid Hills, Stewart Chambers, of Ansley Park and Clem House, of the Key Course have entered the tournament and will be watched closely by the players on their courses. This will be the initial appearance of Harry Stevens as a tournament player. He is playing his usual steady game and Frank Ogg is expected to give a fine account of himself.

Pairing After First Day.
The pairings after the morning round this morning will be made on the basis of the lowest scores. This will give the gallery the opportunity of following the low scorers without changing the seating of the players.

The first pair will tee off at 9:00 o'clock and the afternoon round will start at 1:30. With good weather some great golf will be played over this course between now and Wednesday night.

The Brookhaven course is in the finest shape that it has ever been in. The fairways are practically perfect and the greens are as smooth as velvet. Howard Beckett and the greens committee at this club have been putting in some master strokes in preparation for this event.

Jack Oke, of Macon, Tom Nichols, of Greenville, and Jack Ingalls, president of the association, Bob Andrews, of the Roebuck club in Birmingham, Nickey Queenan, of West Point, Bill Damsen, of Montgomery, and Fred Haskins, of Columbus, Charles Gray, Sr. and Jr., are among those entered and there are others, the entry list at this writing comprising 28 golfers. Others may enter this morning in time to play their first 18 holes.

Failure Charged To Columbus Board by Hinkle

Altoona, Pa., June 5.—H. Gordon Hinkle, former city manager of Columbus, Ga., today stated the reason he was forced to leave that city recently was because he was handicapped by the police department, over which he had no control and that politicians and bootleggers were against him.

Hinkle arrived at his home here last night. He said that when he assumed the city manager of Columbus he found an overdraft in the general fund of $142,000 and $54,000 of unpaid bills. He added that owing to lack of book-keeping some of the bills were paid two and three times.

All forces were combined against him. He said he was not able to obtain support from the commission. He said he left when the commission decided to oust him although he had told the mayor of Columbus previously that he was intending to leave.

Columbus, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) The statement regarding Columbus city affairs made in Altoona, Penn., by former City Manager H. Gordon Hinkle, was read with interest in Columbus. The city's overdraft and unpaid bills at the time the commission took charge of municipal affairs have been referred to time and again, officials stated.

As a matter of fact, the retiring administration characterized this as a "book overdraft" declaring that when the city collected paying assessments and the amounts due, all bills would have been paid and a surplus left in the city treasury.

Hinkle's statement that "politicians and the bootleggers" were against him is correct. That he was handicapped by lack of full co-operation on the part of the police department also is believed to be true, it was stated. Hinkle's statement that he could not obtain support at the hands of the city commission is not regarded as serious. It is believed that he was given all reasonable support by the city commissioners. Mayor Dixon was out of the city today.

Sparks College Head.

Valdosta, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) Robert C. Mizell, who was a member of the Valdosta High school faculty this year, has been elected president of the Sparks college at Sparks, Ga., to succeed Rev. Leland Moore, who goes back to his work in the Methodist conference. The Sparks college is a branch school of Emory university.

CONFERENCE WILL NAME GRIFFITH COMMISSIONER

Chicago, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Major John L. Griffith, head of the department of physical education of the University of Illinois, for three years, has been offered the position of commissioner of athletics in the western conference, according to reports in college athletic circles here tonight.

Major Griffith, according to reports, has not reached a decision on acceptance of the position, similar to that held by Commissioner Landis in organized baseball, and approved at a big ten-faculty meeting at Iowa City, Iowa, Saturday.

Sam Langford Kayoes Tiger Flowers In Two Rounds With Right Chop

Ancient Battler Takes All Flowers Sends and Waits for Chance—Burke and White Will Fight.

By CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Sam Langford, the ancient "Boston Tar Baby" looked at a lot of boxing gloves last night at Ponce de Leon Park. Tiger Flowers, the Atlanta entry in the fistie entertainment looked at but one. It was a glove encasing the right hand of the old colored battler and it showed up about halfway the second round. The "Tiger" saw it as it made for his jaw. Then he saw nothing and heard little until approximately a minute later when his seconds finally brought him back to life.

"Tham" is fat and away over forty, but while his legs aren't at all what they used to be and his waistline is several inches larger than his chest, "Tham" still knows how to chop and he is still a master in timing the punches he seeks to land.

Flowers' knockout was a shock to the spectators. They had seen themselves as the "Tiger's" tactics plainly puzzled the veteran ringman. They had shouted gleefully as "Tham" was forced to take close to a hundred slaps in the first round as he looked for the opening he knew would end the match.

At the end of the opening stanza Flowers was the unanimous choice for winner. It seemed that Langford wouldn't be able to land a solid punch all night and it was very plain that he had no way of preventing Flowers from landing whenever he wanted to.

There was a brief session in the first round when some handwringing appeared on the wall, that is if you can call the wire screen in front of the grandstand a wall. It was when Flowers put everything he had into a number of blows that rained in Langford's face. An ordinary fighter, of course, would have quit under the shower, but "Tham" simply laughed and stuck out his jaw for more.

"Tham" Gets Hit.

The "Tar Baby" came out with a badly discolored eye and a trace of blood was noted as he went to his corner, but Langford looked to be thoroughly confident of eventually getting his man. He had a pretty well defined idea that Flowers couldn't cause him very much embarrassment when time arrived for sending the heavy artillery to the front.

When the second round rolled up, Langford figured it was time to get the seige gun ready and his decision found Flowers under the impression that the old colored man was just coping with the Atlanta's crazy style.

Flowers probably realizes at this writing that somebody had given him a bum steer. A fighter of Langford's hitting ability is able to stick around

NEW GUN RECORDS RECOGNIZED BY A. T. A.

New York, June 5.—Recognition of a world's record for expert marksmanship established by E. F. Woodward, Houston, Texas, and Frank Hughes, McBridge, S. D., each of whom broke 90 out of 100 targets thrown in pairs at the recent Mississippi state trap-shooting tournament, was announced officially tonight by the American Trapshooting association.

The former record was 96. Double-target shooting calls for two targets to be thrown simultaneously, one to the left, the other to the right, and both must be broken while in the air. The joint holders of the new record are amateurs.

With any kind of style the opposition might inject into the fray.

Having determined that the battle was as quietly as possible, Langford started after Flowers at the gong, probably stopped twenty hard taps with his face, and snatched the first opportunity to come his way. The finishing blow was delivered just as the fighters were coming out of a clinch, in which Flowers had taken lots of body punishment.

Spectators Miss Punch.

Few of the spectators except those at ringside saw the punch. They heard something that closely resembled a wallop and then Flowers hit the floor. As Referee Glynn counted the "Tiger" writhed over the canvas, retaining sufficient of his senses to hear a portion of the count. He was making a game attempt to come up when the last figure was reached, having clambered to his knees, but with both hands still touching the floor.

The fatal clout was a right chop which traveled something more than six inches. It caught Flowers wholly unprepared, the Atlanta evidently believing that Langford carried nothing dangerous unless set for some more.

"Tham's" feat was just further proof that athletes in all lines still carry the punch long after their real usefulness has gone. Lawrence Doyle as a boxer in the Southern league would rank near the top of his high right now. Sam Langford in a hitting contest would give a good account of himself.

But that player has just so many balls to throw before his arm goes completely. He has just so many miles to run before his legs go dead. But there is hardly a time limit on the slowness of his hitting eye. Sam Langford can't move around any more. He couldn't get out of the way of blows to save his life, but he hasn't lost the power in his fists.

Young, hard hitting heavyweights who are looking for a fight, are being mustered to carry youth and a real punch. Against the light hitters "Tham" would fare as well as he did against Flowers last night. He has what it takes to get the chance to bring his big gun into action.

Fighting In All Matches.

The fans saw more real fighting than has been shown in a local arena for months. There were no frays in which some entered the fray. In all fights, including the events, it was sock and sock until something dropped.

That something dropped rather suddenly in the opening affair. Kid Davis was dropped. Ed Hawkins was the dropper. After making an extremely elaborate introduction of the dusky batters, Announcer "Red" Elrod barely managed to get out of the ring before Davis hit the dust, a smashing right to the jaw sending him to the count. It was the first and only blow of the fight, which will probably go down as the quickest knockout in fistie history.

Dynamite Dixon and Flash Hawkins, who flashed in from Greenville, S. C., especially for this fight, gave the fans some splendid entertainment. Flash possesses a fine left hand and one of the hardest jaws this correspondent has ever seen shoved before an unsuspecting public. He kept his left in Dixon's face most of the time and his jaw in contact with Dixon's and right during the greater portion of the festivities.

Referee Miller awarded the decision to Dixon, but he might have called it a draw without hurting any one's feelings. The crowd thoroughly enjoyed the affair, which was voted one of the best slam-bang ring battles ever presented Atlanta fans.

Billy Hoover Wins.

In the semi-windup Battling Hooper, long a favorite hereabouts, took a beating from the rougher out of "Rough-Louse" Ware, winning mainly by poking Ware's nose with left jab until the visiting fighter's general assault on life seemed mighty sour.

Referee Elrod stated that Joe White, the "Alabama wildcat" who is rapidly coming to the front among the heavyweights, had been signed to battle Martin Burke, who recently traveled often round with Billy Mike. The date was given as June 15 at the ball park.

President S. Davis Warfield in announcing the organization in a statement to the officials and employees, said in part:

"To meet the necessities for conducting transportation under present and changed conditions, to provide a wider and better understanding of the shipping public and public bodies and the railroad and between the railroad and its employees, to furnish the means for the definite control of expenditures, to provide a more intensive development of the resources of the territory traversed by the Seaboard, the settlement of questions growing out of federal control, and to obtain a better understanding of the administration by a strict adherence to the intention to carry out the purpose of the transportation act of 1920, it has been determined to make provision for a comprehensive organization for a broader and more extended use of the talents of the forces of the company.

"It is desired that effective shop organizations and standards be established.

Budget Committee.

"First the expenditures made by this railroad in every department shall be decided upon by a committee designated the budget committee. DR. SOULE INSISTS
'WORST IS OVER'

Athens, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—"Buck up and fight it through. We have no real reason for reaching that point of discouragement where we are willing to give up the fight against unfavorable conditions and resign ourselves to whatever fate may bring."

That was the statement of Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, when interviewed with reference to present conditions, especially as related to agriculture. Dr. Soule declares he expects a great era of prosperity.

"My abiding faith in the farmers of this section," said Dr. Soule, "tells me that they will work out their problems in the same vein of courage and effective accomplishment in which they have solved their real issues. I look for an era of unequalled prosperity that will bring to our section a development that can be rivaled by no other section of our country."

Corn Favored.

"Farmers will find it advisable," he further said, "to continue the planting of corn and other food crops, thus laying their plans to feed themselves and their stock through the winter. They should really look upon cotton as a surplus crop and in no manner consider it the one crop of the year. In order to check the ravages of the boll weevil they should, as soon as weather conditions permit, continue the use of calcium arsenate and fight the weevil to the finish. The use of the poison on the cotton over prevailing is so much money wasted, but that method of checking the weevil can be carried out effectively as soon as weather conditions permit."

Calcium Arsenate.

In regard to the manner in which the farmers can obtain the best results from their calcium arsenate application, he advised that as soon as the insects rains are over the pest can be dusted over the cotton every four days through dry weather in order that the pest can be under control, should the present weather conditions set in again. Dusting cotton under wet weather conditions, he continued, is very effective unless there is a heavy rain immediately after the application. Under latter condition, however, the farmer at the present time and it is better for him to wait until the weather is more settled. Applications of the poison should be continued during the season until the cotton is matured beyond damage from the weevil.

FAIR WEATHER TODAY,
PREDICTS FORECASTER

The weather specialist continues to hand out cheery forecasts that it will be fair in Atlanta and vicinity Tuesday. Over on the coast, however, cloudy weather will obtain with probable showers. The outlook for the week is for generally fair, with little change in the temperature and a probability of widely scattered local thundershowers.

Germany Sees Improvement in Conditions With Aid of Financiers.

BY WALTER S. BROWN,
Editor of The New York Commercial.
Written for The Atlanta Constitution.

New York, June 5.—Political developments abroad are more reassuring now that international bankers have taken matters in charge. The first step in Germany's economic rehabilitation has been taken with considerable promise of success for future efforts. It has been found that Germany could not accomplish the impossible, and the tendency now is to rearrange conditions so that they will be brought within the limitations of what is actually possible.

On the other hand, Germany herself is being induced to do what she declared to be impossible. The main thing to do is to stop the printing presses and to make a supreme effort to balance her budget. It is going to cost her a considerable wrench to do this, but however painful that may be, it will be infinitely better than a collapse.

Revival of Business.

The point to be borne in mind is that a step forward has been made, and from the American point of view it will lead to the recovery of the German economy and the revival of American business. It may be that the Geneva conference has marked the beginning of the regeneration of Russia. It probably has, but what the next move will be no one seems to know. One thing that can be depended upon is that the meantime Russia again will recognize the existence of economic law. There has never been a genius enough in the world to successfully defy the law of economics, and there is certainly nothing of that kind in Russia today.

In the realm of American politics conditions cannot be regarded with any degree of satisfaction in financial circles. The revolt against congress is steadily growing. Its sins of commission have been comparatively few because it has done practically nothing—neither good nor bad. It is its sins of omission that are causing the complaint, also the fear of what it is about to do.

Bonus Question.

The bonus looms again more menacingly over the country with the possibility of adding five to seven billion dollars to the burden upon the country. It seems probable that the bill as now framed will be passed by the senate. But that will be vetoed by the president, with the chance that it will be re-passed over the president's veto.

Equally serious from the political standpoint is the tariff debate now going on in congress. The further the bill progresses in the senate, the more it is realized what an unsatisfactory bill it is. The country wants a revised tariff, but not one of the kind that is being offered.

Essential Points.

The essential points of a tariff are, first, that it shall be a revenue producer; second, that it shall accord sufficient protection to industries that could otherwise face ruinous foreign competition; and, finally, that it shall be flexible at least to the extent that it can be used for bargaining purposes with countries that might otherwise discriminate against us. The new tariff bill does not meet these requirements, that it can only act as a burden upon American consumers.

U. S. Certificates
Over-Subscribed
In This District

Washington, June 5.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The Atlanta district of the Federal Reserve bank over-subscribed its $5,840,000 certificates of 1 1/2 per cent treasury securities by $4,074,000, according to an announcement issued today by Secretary Mellon. Subscriptions for the certificates, which were dated June 1, 1922, and maturing December 15, 1922, closed on the first day of June.

Figures for the Atlanta district were somewhat crowded on the whole than were the other federal reserve districts, having almost doubled its allotment. A few of the districts doubled their quotas, which every regional bank reported the full allotment subscribed. Total subscriptions for the Atlanta district was $10,714,000.

Secretary Mellon stated that the total amount of subscriptions received for the certificates was $20,541,500 and that the total amount of subscriptions allotted was $20,000,000.

COTTON AND COTTON
COMMITTEE ISSUED
AGAINST MERGER

Washington, June 5.—The federal trade commission has issued a formal complaint against the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Lackawanna Steel company charging they have been and are using unfair methods of competition. The complaint developed from the merger recently effected by the two companies.

The commission made this announcement today in a report to the senate in response to the recently adopted resolution of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, directing inquiry into the merger by the commission and the department of justice.

The commission, however, emphasized that the issue of the complaint against the merger was not the legality of the Bethlehem-Lackawanna merger. That is a question, the commission reported on a bill which apparently includes most of the obvious features that have been so severely criticized, and the stock market paid not the slightest heed to the development. It may be that the federal trade commission is a political body, but it is not a stock market body, and it is not a stock market body, and it is not a stock market body.

BANDER IS HEAD OF EMORY ALUMNI

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

The Emory Alumni association at a meeting held in the university auditorium Monday adopted revolutionary changes in its constitution which will put the organization on a firm basis, members believe.

Judge John S. Candler, of the class of '80, was elected president; Robert E. Paine, '87, vice president; Professor Harry H. Stone, '80, secretary; and Professor Paul Bryan, '07, treasurer.

Speaks on "Patriotism."

Following the business session, Judge Candler introduced Harry B. Strozier, of Macon, city attorney of that city, who delivered a masterful address on "The Patriotism of Peace." People of the country are responsible for the happiness of the world, municipal and state governments are run, asserted the speaker. Patriotism in peace times is just as essential as in war times, Mr. Strozier declared. If proper attention to local conditions are to follow.

"Good men will not offer for places in the majority of cases," declared the speaker, "and where they do, they are not put into office, because they are the best people who do not wish to soil themselves with political contests. A condition of this kind is not productive of good government."

After the adjournment of the business session, Judge Candler was host to the 200 or more members of the association at a luncheon in the university dining hall. Members of the class of 1902, founded the Emory Alumni Association, and the first meeting of the association was held at a dinner in the Piedmont hotel. Thomas W. Connally presided.

The meeting of the Medical School alumni will continue until June 8. The Student Body will occupy the first part of the meeting Tuesday. The latter part being occupied by "The Medical Clinics."

Commencement Exercises. Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Bishop Warren, of the Diocese of Georgia, will preside at the commencement exercises, which will be held at the Emory university upon the recommendation of the deans of the various schools. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, a

YAARAB DELEGATION REACHES SAN ANTONIO

BY LEN BALDWIN.

San Antonio, Texas, June 5.—(Special.)—Yaarab's special train arrived on time in San Antonio. A large delegation of Shriners from Alsos temple, devoted and escorted the Atlantans to a Mexican restaurant where they dined on chili con carne and enchiladas.

After dinner the nobles and their wives were taken on a sight-seeing trip about the city. Harmonia temple, of Meridian, Miss., arrived here today on their way to San Francisco.

In spite of the rain, which was the first encountered thus far on the trip, a large number of San Antonians were at the station to meet the party.

At New Orleans Sunday the "million dollar" band of Yaarab temple, led by El Paso, where they will spend the day and cross the Rio Grande into Juarez, Mexico.

Potomac Gibson was met at the station in San Antonio by Postmaster Michael and a special escort. "Tiny" the Shetland pony of the famous Oriental band, was here to meet us.

We leave at 4 o'clock this afternoon for El Paso, where we will spend the day and cross the Rio Grande into Juarez, Mexico.

GREAT EXPOSITION TO BENEFIT STATE, SAYS R. C. BROOKS

"Savannah has made no organized effort, as yet, to develop state interest in the proposed world exposition to commemorate the hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the first transatlantic trip by steamship. Everyone, of course, is interested and I believe sentiment will crystallize soon and become active."

That was the statement yesterday of R. C. Brooks, general manager of the Savannah Electric & Power company and one of the most influential business men of that city. Mr. Brooks was in Atlanta attending to business matters. He arrived Monday morning and left at night.

"There can be no question that the exposition can be made valuable to Georgia," he continued. "The educational benefits of expositions have been demonstrated on numerous occasions. It is a man's job, however, and in addition to requiring a vast amount of industry, it also will demand a large outlay of money. Mayor Murray Stewart, of Savannah, has submitted the plan to the board of directors of the city and is now waiting for their decision. I think, fully endorse the idea."

Mr. Brooks, though, apparently was more interested in the present campaign to reduce the number of accidents on street railway and steam railroad systems. He declared that the "safety first" drive now in progress will make the saving of lives and an almost incalculable value of property loss. He insisted that the public, pedestrians as well as motorists, drivers should co-operate with the railroad and make the campaign unanimous.

"For the last six months," said Mr. Brooks, "our company has been waging an intensive campaign against accidents of any character and to splitting switch and rereiling cars. It has been productive of great results."
